Two charged in murder of 16-year-old

Police late Monday night charged two Skokie residents, one of them a 16-year-old boy, in connection with the murder of a Morton Grove girl, who was found stabbed to death earlier in the day near an elementary school in Skokie.

The juvenile, whose name was withheld, was charged with the murder.

Ramazon Genc, 19, of 4915 Hull St., Skokie, was charged with concealing the body of the murdered girl.

Andrea Sax, who had left her Morton Grove home Sunday night to visit her boyfriend, was found early Monday morning in the rear of Madison School, 5100 Madison St., Skokie. The building is adjacent to the Skokie Police Dept.

SKOKIE POLICE Sgt. Michael Burns said police were led to the two suspects by an eyewitness who told authorities he saw the pair running from Miss Sax's 1969 gold Pontiac Le-Mans near the school Sunday night.

Sgt. Burns said Miss Sax had been on her way to her boyfriend's house when she picked up the two suspects. She then drove to the elementary school, which is not in the same direction as the boyfriend's house, Sgt. Burns said.

He said both suspects knew the girl. Both had been brought in for questionning Monday afternoon when Genc admitted to knowing about the case, Burns said.

Genc is scheduled to be arraigned on the concealment charge at 9 a.m. in the Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court. The juvenile suspect will be named in a juvenile petition today. He was taken late Monday to the Cook County Audy Home in Chicago.

The girl, 8934 Meade, Morton Grove, had been stabbed to death some time between 9 p.m. Sunday and 6:50 a.m. Monday when a school custodian found her body.

HER SLAYING is the second in less than a week in the suburb and the fifth there this year.

Late Monday the girl's vehicle, which had been missing, was found at Madison St. and Parkside Ave. in Morton Grove, about four blocks from the school. Burns said the car was being inspected, including what may be a small amount of blood found on the vehicle.

MISS SAX'S clothed body was found in bushes abutting the rear wall of the elementary school. Burns said the girl apparently struggled with her assailant and was killed on the school grounds. He said it did not appear the girl had been molested sexually.

A knife that may have been the murder weapon was discovered late Monday near the opposite end of the

They have always been proud of their town.

For years, they used to call it the "Largest Village in the World" and then it was "The Village with Vision."

Most residents also could recite how Skokie was an early film capital until the movie industry moved to Hollywood in 1913 or how it had 61 saloons and roadhouses during Prohibition or how it changed its name from Niles Centre in 1940 because the original name sounded too rural.

And most of the residents used to feel safe.

Sniper shoots 10 in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A former Internal Revenue Service accountant, disturbed about marital problems and the loss of his job, wounded 10 persons Monday in a wild hour-long shooting spree that started in a house, spread to famed Bourbon Street and ended in the city's business district, police said.

Carlos Poree, 35, surrendered without resistance to two plainclothes policemen less than a block from an investment company office where the last five victims were shot.

Five hours after his arrest, Poree was taken to Charity Hospital with injuries police said he suffered in a scuffle with officers trying to photograph and fingerprint him at central lockup.

He has a facial cut and probably will remain hospitalized overnight, said a Charity spokesman. "He is in stable condition."

EARLIER IN THE day, all 10 shooting victims were taken to the same hospital, where six of the wounded underwent surgery. Four were in critical condition late Monday, three others were listed as serious and three were said either to be in good or stable condition.

Four of the victims were from out of state, including two Tennessee men and an Alabama man shot on Bourbon Street.

Poree's estranged wife, Diane, 34, and her father, Alvin J. Broussard, were believed to have been the first victims of the spree.

"Diane and Carlos had been arguing for some time," said Dorothy Broussard, Poree's mother-in-law. But she added, "I never had any indication he would do anything like this. He never threatened any of us."

MRS. BROUSSARD said she was at a day nursery she operates when a neighbor called to tell her he had heard gunshots at her home. She said she returned home to find her husband lying on the floor and her daughter bleeding on a bed.

"I asked my daughter, 'Did Carlos do this?" and she siad, 'Yes, Momma,' " Mrs. Broussard said. "He (Broussard) said Carlos came in and wanted to talk to Diane.

"He got into an argument and when he (Broussard) asked Carlos to leave he turned and shot him in the neck and then shot Diane."

MRS. BROUSSARD said Poree and her daughter had been having problems since her son-in-law lost his $19,000-a-year job with the New Orleans IRS office last year.

About an hour after Mrs. Poree and Broussard were shot, police said three tourists were wounded at a tiny bench-lined park along Bourbon Street in the French Quarter — several miles from Broussard's home.

"He (the gunman) got out of his car, shot the men and tried to get back into the car to leave, but traffic tied him up," said a witness, Maurice Jones.

"Then he got out of the car, looked at us with the gun in his hands and ran."

TUESDAY IN THE HERALD

Carey criticized

Two area bar associations have charged Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey with attempting to "intimidate the judiciary" in a controversy surrounding a suburban judge's handling of a case involving the assault of a 10-year-old girl. — Page 7.

Toccoa was romantic

Nancy Schmeissing, a freshman from Schaumburg who attended Toccoa Falls Bible College, says the forested, rocky glen just below the dam that burst Sunday was a favorite spot for sightseers and sweethearts. The death toll, meantime, climbed to 38 Monday. — Page 3.

Stocks advance

The Dow Jones industrial average scored its third straight gain Monday, helped by bargain hunters encouraged by indications the Federal Reserve Board had relaxed its credit policies. The average price of a share jumped 24 cents. — Sect. 3, Page 1.

Mikva mad

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva has asked the U.S. Dept. of Justice to investigate a mass mailing campaign linking his name to anti-gun control. Mikva said at least 15 to 20 other lawmakers' names have appeared on the same mass mailing campaign. — Page 6.

Dist. 59 sets promotion criteria

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 has become the first Northwest suburban school district to establish guidelines for promoting students.

The guidelines adopted by the Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday provide that students be promoted or retained based on their classroom performance; their scores on the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills; the district's criteria reference test now under development and reading and language arts levels tests; and their social, emotional and physical growth pattern.

Much of the push for the promotion policy came after the release of the district's 1976-77 Iowa scores, which showed sixth, seventh and eighth graders were slightly below the national average in math skills and reading.

"I'M VERY CONCERNED with the over 200 kids we kicked into high school this year who can't read," board member Richard Stamm said. "We have fallen flat on our faces as a board of educators by letting kids progress through the system without learning and it's time we did something about it."

Students receiving reading and math composite scores of more than one year below grade level on the Iowa tests will not be promoted under the newly adopted policy.

The promotion policy was adopted by a 4-3 vote Monday. Board members Stamm, Sharon Chavoen, Paul Kucharski and Board Pres. Harold Harvey voted to adopt the policy. Board members Judith Zanca, Barbara Somagyi and Emil Bahnmaier voted against the policy.

Dissenting board members favored a second promotion policy, which was drafted as a consensus of the district's curriculum and testing com-

Doctors protest emergency care

by KURT BAER

It is not unusual for patients to wait three, six or even eight hours before they see a doctor in the emergency room at Cook County Hospital on Chicago's near West Side.

And it is not uncommon for the doctor who finally examines them to be in the midst of a 60, 80 or even 100-hour work week.

That was the message of staff physicians who staged a three-hour "work-in" at the hospital's emergency room Monday to dramatize their contract demands for better patient care.

THE DOCTORS "took over" the emergency room to prove to the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission, that runs the tax-supported county hospital, that the waiting time could be cut to one or two hours with just a small increase in staff.

"This hospital is the primary physician for a lot of people in Chicago. Many patients pass up five or six other hospitals to get here either because they do not have enough money to get in those hospitals, or no doctor in their neighborhood is on staff at those other hospitals," Dr. Terry Conway, president of the Hospital Staff Assn. of 390 physicians, told a doctors' rally before Monday's job action.

Like many of the doctors at Cook County Hospital, Conway, 29, is young, idealistic and increasingly unwilling to cut corners in medical service to the hospital's largely poor and black patients.

"When I told Dr. James Haughton (executive director of the governing commission) that one of our demands is pajamas for the patients, his only response was laughter. To me, that shows they just don't care," Conway said.

DR. CALVIN WADLEY, 32, runs the emergency room at county hospital. His official title is medical director of the adult emergency department. His 24-hour concern is how to treat the 750 adult patients who come to county hospital's emergency room for treatment on an average day.

"For the patient with a real emergency, a 10-minute wait is too long," Wadley said. "We always try to take people first who are most in need of treatment. But of course we often don't know how badly someone needs care until we've seen them. So there you are."

Wadley said three more doctors per shift, some more attendants and remodeling of the 60-year-old emergency quarters could cut the average identified as Henry Lucker, 67, of Gadsden, Ala.; Richard Quarles, 26, of Nashville, Tenn., and Douglas Martin, 20, of Nashville. Lucker and Quarles were listed in serious condition late Monday, while Martin was resting in good condition.

Minutes later, five more men were shot inside and near an investment building where hundreds of workers were milling about during the lunch hour.

"I heard shots and saw this man fall," said George Savage, 62, who had just parked his car outside the investment building. "People in the street all squatted down. I just laid down on the seat."

Ambulance drivers said one of the five was pronounced dead on arrival at Charity Hospital, but doctors said he was revived by life support machines. Two others were in serious condition and the last two — including Alben Carlson, 49, of Bay St. Louis, Miss. — were listed in stable condition.

Dam burst can't shatter students' faith

A LONE INVESTIGATOR examines the earthen dam in Toccoa, Ga., which gave way early Sunday killing 38 people. Gov. George Busbee identified the dam as one of 84 in Georgia designated as "high hazard" by the Army Corps of Engineers. The "high hazard" label applied only because there was a chance of loss of life should the dam rupture. One man is still missing and presumed dead.

by PAUL GORES

The forested, rocky glen just below the Toccoa Creek dam had been a favorite spot for sightseers and sweethearts at Toccoa Falls Bible College, says Nancy Schmeissing, a freshman from Schaumburg.

Fed by a dammed-up lake above, the falls flowed peacefully through the mountains of Northeast Georgia.

"It was just beautiful," Nancy says, "it was a very beautiful, romantic area."

BUT WHEN FOUR days of rain drove the Toccoa Creek dam to its breaking point early Sunday, the tranquil falls were transformed into a wave of devastation.

The water tore through a cluster of mobile homes known as "Trailerville" to the college community, killing 37 and leaving what Nancy described as "absolutely nothing."

It left trees that "looked like somebody had picked them up and broke them over their knee."

And worst of all, Nancy says, were the cries of sorrow the avalanche of water left in its wake.

She says she listened to them from a nearby hill, where her dormitory and other parts of the college were protected from the rushing waters.

"NO ONE SLEPT that night," she says. "You just heard screams all night. You would hear relatives and members of families just scream when they knew someone was dead."

Many of the dead were Nancy's friends. And many of them were residents of Trailerville, married students, some with children, who were struggling to make a go of it.

"Things were kind of tight there to begin with," she says. "And now they've lost everything."

Nancy spent Sunday visiting at the hospital, where she checked on the condition of friends as Toccoa residents came in to identify the bodies of children, wives and husbands.

"We were like one big family," she says of the 450-student college. "When we lose even one it seems a tragedy."

ALTHOUGH SHE and the rest of the women in her dormitory were protected from the rushing water, "when we heard what was happening we just all grabbed hands and fell to our knees and prayed," she says.

She says she believes many prayers were answered that night because some of those caught in the waters were able to escape.

Although the flood shattered the serenity of Toccoa, it has not shattered the faith of the college community.

"A lot of times the Lord allows things to happen to test our faith, not to shatter it," she says.

Nancy, a 1977 graduate of Conant High School, flew back to Schaumburg Monday and will remain at home, 1711 Columbine Dr., for at least a week.

But she says there is "no way" the college will begin to function soon. For the time being, it will be only a time of prayers and consolation for those who were touched most by the tragedy.

"We know the people that were taken away are rejoicing right now with the Lord," she says. "But those people who are left behind, who have lost their loved ones, those are the ones we cry for."

Georgia dam not checked: expert

TOCCOA, Ga. (UPI) — The earthen dam that burst in the northeast Georgia mountains Sunday, deluging a sleeping Bible college campus, was never inspected by federal or Georgia officials, a congressman charged Monday.

The official death toll for the disaster stood at 38, with one man still missing and presumed drowned. All other faculty, students and children associated with Toccoa Falls College were accounted for, a college spokesman said.

Rescuers late Monday found the body of Dr. Jerry Sproull, a professor at the college, lying under an air conditioning unit next to a trailer in a trailer park.

THE SEARCH for the missing man — identified as Paul Williams, 76 — stopped as night began to fall. The search is to resume Tuesday.

In Washington, Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., chairman of a House panel investigating dam safety, said the dam above the college had "never been inspected by any agency of the state of Georgia nor by the (Army) Corps of Engineers."

He said the dam — and thousands like it across the country that have not been inspected — were "like loaded shutguns pointed at the people downstream, and all it takes today to trigger that shotgun is a heavy rainfall of the kind we had over the weekend in Georgia."

At a late afternoon briefing in Toccoa, college officials dodged questions about the structural soundness of the dam, referring reporters to the Corps of Engineers. A Corps spokesman earlier had said the agency had no authority to make such inspections.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT Kenn Opperman said earlier Monday he did not know if the dam had ever been inspected.

President Carter, cutting through federal red tape, issued a disaster declaration at noon, less than 36 hours after the dam burst, to speed federal relief aid to the area.

Th dam gave way after five days of rainfall that became particularly heavy on Saturday.

Ryan forecast similar dam disasters unless the government begins enforcing a 1972 law that requires federal inspections of private dams. He estimated there are 50,000 such structures nationwide that have not been inspected because the law has gone largely unenforced.

OPPERMAN SAID a road across the top and some access roads to the dam had been inspected by a government agency, apparently the Soil and Conservation Service, three days before the tragedy.

But F. R. Hansen, business manager of the college, said there was no road across the top and only the access roads had been inspected by the Georgia Department of Transportation.

The dam was one of 84 in Georgia, and 20,000 nationwide, that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers labled a "high hazard," meaning if it burst, property damage and loss of life could result.

The federal government has no authority to regulate private dams, and neither does the state of Georgia.

N. Carolina flash flood toll at 10

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Workers digging through mud and rubble found seven bodies Monday in the flood-ravaged Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina, boosting the number of victims in Sunday's flash flooding to at least 10.

Gov. James B. Hunt made an aerial tour of the region and said he would declare it a disaster area and seek federal relief. Officials estimated damage in the tens of millions of dollars and Hunt said he expected damages to be about $40 million to roads and bridges alone.

The bodies of two 3-year-old children, who had previously been listed as presumed dead, were found Monday.

The bodies of three teenagers who drowned while apparently trying to swim a creek in Morgantown were also recovered. They were Chris Hamby, 18, his brother Tony, 16, both of Valdese, and Mark Hawkins, 14, of Morgantown.

Searchers at Morgantown found the body of Ike Peterson, 75, in a shack where he lived in an abandoned coal-yard. The body of Steven Roger Allison, 30, of Old Fort, was found about 50 yards from where his pickup truck was left in the Catawba River Road section of McDowell County.

Confessed North Carolina murderer commits suicide

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Daniel R. Webster, a confessed killer who badgered a jury to give him the death sentence, committed suicide in his death row cell by slashing his arm and neck with a razor blade, prison officials said Monday.

Central Prison Warden Sam Garrison said Webster left a lengthy note saying he decided to commit suicide after he prayed and communicated with God. The warden said there had been no earlier indication that Webster, 51, was suicidal.

Webster also left a three-page handwritten document purporting to be a will. It was being examined by prison attorneys.

Webster confessed to the ax murder of his wife, Gladys Beauchamp Webster, and told a nine-man, three-woman Davie County jury they would be a "disgrace to North Carolina" if they did not sentence him to die in the gas chamber. He received the death sentence last month.

Webster's body was found late Sunday night when a prisoner cried out that something had fallen in Webster's cell. He was found lying on the floor with a bloody razor blade nearby, and died a short time later in the prison hospital.

Fear grows in 'nice, small town'

day in Michael Burns' office. He is the sergeant in charge of public relations at the Skokie Police Dept., and each time the phone rang, he told another reporter the same details of the morning's murder.

Finally, they stopped ringing momentarily, and he leaned back in his chair and folded his hands behind his head.

"A nice, small town like Skokie has just caught all kinds of hell this year," Burns said. "This is the fifth homicide this year."

It doesn't appear that the murders are related, he said, they just don't follow a pattern. And police have made arrests in three of the cases.

STILL, PEOPLE are nervous. Burns can sense the nervousness. It is only natural, he said.

"People hear homicide, murder, mayhem in the street," he said. "When it happens in suburban communities, people do get alarmed."

The phone rings again, and Burns lifts the receiver to listen to more questions he already has answered.

ITEM: Nov. 2, the body of Chicago prostitute Martha Kowalski, 31, is found in a sleeping bag along Old Orchard Road. Strangled and drowned in a tub of water. Two suspects arrested.

Jim Davis sat in his car with the motor running waiting for his wife to come out of a supermarket about a block away from the police station.

He pointed toward the hood. Three weeks ago, someone pried it open, he said. Before that, somebody broke a lock on the other family car. About five months ago, someone pried open the door to the front porch at his house — for the third time.

"IT'S NOT SAFE anymore," he said softly.

Davis is 67 and retired. For more than 20 years he's lived on a little peninsula of Morton Grove that juts into Skokie.

When he moved in, there were only three houses on the street. It seemed safer then.

"Ten or 15 years ago, you could leave your car unlocked, you could even leave your house unlocked when you go to the store," he said.

NOW, HE IS alarmed. He does not even walk around the block at night any more.

His wife put the groceries in the hatchback and got into the car.

"Our community has gotten to be like a jungle out here," she said.

ITEM: Aug. 30, the decomposed body of Susan Clarke, 16, is discovered near the Old Orchard shopping center. Stabbed, shot in the back of the head and sexually assaulted. Assailant unknown.

Alarm is not really the reaction, Mrs. August Henkel said. It is more anger.

"I don't get upset at my age (about my safety)," she said. "If I was 16, I might."

BUT THERE IS an aspect to the slayings that bothers her, she said. It is the system. How it works for criminals.

"What I get upset at is at the law, and how they treat them," Mrs. Henkel said. "They catch these people and then they're back on the street."

Item: May 10, Kathrina Soppi, 14, and her mother Natalia, 50, are found dead in their apartment. Kathrina, shot in the head; Natalia, strangled. Two suspects arrested.

Last year, Sgt. Burns said, Skokie did not have any homicides.

The police department, he said, has "1,000 and one programs on public awareness." Not long ago, the village began a crackdown on hitchhiking as part of an improvement of its over-all crime prevention program.

THE POLICE, he said, are trying to stop crimes before they occur.

"I'm afraid the only time people see these things is when we have a rash of things like this," Burns said. "Too often, it appears that we are reacting to what has happened."

Less than a block away was Madison School.

A row of bushes in back was still wet and matted and trampled. Police believe that is where Miss Sax struggled with her attacker. That is where her body was found.

If she looked through the dark branches, she would have seen an outline of an old brick building as she died. The building is Skokie's police station.

school yard where the girl's purse had been found earlier. Burns said robbery apparently was not a motive for the slaying since the girl's purse contained money.

Miss Sax had left her home at about 9 p.m. Sunday to visit her boyfriend, police said. The girl never arrived, however, and her mother reported her missing shortly before midnight to the Morton Grove police.

Friends of the girl were being questioned Monday, he said.

Miss Sax's slaying comes five days after Skokie police found the body of Martha E. Kowalski, 31, Chicago, along the roadside near 4300 Old Orchard Road. The woman had been strangled and her body left in a sleeping bag.

A 22-year-old Skokie man, Joseph F. Miller, has been charged with Mrs. Kowalski's slaying and is to appear in a preliminary court hearing this morning in the Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Three of the other five slayings have been cleared. Only one, the murder of Susan Clarke several months ago, remains unsolved, Burns said. Miss Clarke's body was found in a field north of Old Orchard Road and west of the Edens Expressway. She was 16.

Douglas, himself a Jew, says he was most impressed by a tour he took of an Israeli-built child-care center in the area populated by Arabs. "That's an important message to counteract the dramatic terrorist attacks that make people think that all Arabs feel that way about Jews," he said. He added that Jews and Arabs are closer than they think.

Barrington Hills woman charged with murder

A Barrington Hills woman who allegedly shot her husband to death Saturday night during a quarrel in their home was charged with murder Monday.

Virginia Sergel, 58, who earlier had been charged with involuntary manslaughter, was freed on $150,000 following a bond reduction hearing in the Niles Branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

She is charged with shooting her husband, Clark Sergel, 57, in the head shortly before midnight Saturday in the bedroom of their home at 69 Hills and Dales Rd. He died early Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Sergel is scheduled to appear at a preliminary hearing Nov. 15 in the Niles court.

MRS. SERGEL'S attorney, Patrick Tuite of Chicago, said his client's bond was reduced because "she meets all the criteria for a low bond. She has no previous record, she is 58 and she lives in the community."

Barrington Hills Police Chief Allan Meyer said Sergel, the owner of an Elgin publishing firm, was found in the bedroom of the one-story brick house. Police found two pistols in the house, including a .38 caliber gun believed to have been used in the slaying.

Mrs. Sergel called police after the incident and told them her husband had been shot, authorities said.

"We don't know what the reason was," Meyer said. Police are checking files and questioning friends and relatives of the Sergels to determine if there is any record of prior domestic problems. No one else was at home at the time of the slaying, police said.

FIREFIGHTERS STRUGGLE to extricate a car that was almost cut in half Monday when caught in the squeeze of the Wells Street bridge over the Chicago river. Driver of the car, Mrs. Rapaphan Boomying, 40, was slightly injured and quickly extricated from the crushed vehicle. A bridge tender said she ignored a barrier. Thousands of commuters were delayed when elevated train service was held up during the extrication.

Coed murder trial defense to begin

Defense attorneys for accused killer Ronald G. Molter, 19, will begin arguments today in Midland County Circuit Court as Molter's trial enters its final days. Molter of Monroe, Mich., is charged in the rape and murder of Mount Prospect coed Marilyn Goodman, 18, who was a freshman at Northwood Institute in Midland, Mich., last May, at the time of her death.

Assistant Midland County Prosecutor Rick Lee finished his case Monday before Judge David S. DeWitt. About 45 witnesses have been called to testify for the prosecution since the trial began last week. A court clerk estimated Monday that Molter's trial should be completed by early next week.

Carey to probe airport concession

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey Monday said he would investigate Airline Canteen Corp., which held an exclusive concession to sell novelties at Chicago's three airports, to determine if the firm is guilty of criminal acts. Airline Canteen's held its concession from 1962 until Saturday, when Mayor Michael A. Bilandic announced cancelation of the contract on the grounds the firm had failed to live up to its obligations. It was disclosed recently two former law partners of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley had interests in the firm and that Daley's son, Michael, represented the firm in negotiations with the city.

McHenry wary of RTA expansion

McHenry County legislators Monday urged a cautious approach to a Regional Transportation Authority plan which would expand mass transit service in the county. Representatives Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, and R. Bruce Waddell, R-Dundee, and Sen. Jack Schaffer, R-Cary, said the RTA's offer of 10 service improvements may be an attempt to "cushion the blow" of a new 5 per cent gas tax. McHenry County and other suburban legislators have tried for years to pass bills permitting their areas to withdraw from the RTA.

U.S. Atty. Branding promoted

Assistant U.S. Atty. Frederick H. Branding of Arlington Heights has been appointed deputy chief of the U.S. attorney's civil division for the Northern District of Illinois. Branding, 33, has been an assistant in the office since November 1973. He is one of only two assistants in the country to have received the Food and Drug Administration's commissioner's special citation for excellence in the field of food and drug law.

Senate unemployment talks tied

The Illinois Senate got tied up in negotiations on unemployment benefits for local government employes Monday. At issue is whether the state or local governments should pick up the bill for new benefits that the federal government requires. Gov. James R. Thompson does not want the state to pay for the changes but Democrats do on grounds local taxing units are hardpressed. Thompson must have the unemployment bill on his desk by Thursday, a federally mandated deadline, or private employers will face heavy fines.

Blind man living proof

Handicaps not confining, kids told

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

Heinz Adam carefully drew three intersecting lines on a blackboard as the gym full of elementary school students watched in amazement.

The feat seems simple enough — except the 65-year-old Adamis blind.

Standing before the students at Dryden School, 722 S. Dryden Ave., Arlington Heights, Adam was living proof of his message that no handicap or problem is too big to conquer if you are willing to come to grips with it.

Almost totally blind since a childhood case measles case, Adam is the international coordinator of Hadley School for the Blind in Winnetka, plays piano and violin and engages in postal chess tournaments on an adapted board he designed himself.

"Each of us has our limitations, but the main thing is to learn how to get around them," Adam told the students. "One thing we all have that's more important than hearing, seeing and smelling is a brain."

JUST BECAUSE blind persons cannot read ink prints does not mean they have to be "dumb," he said, noting there are books written in a language of touch for the blind. Using a lightboard, Adam showed his audience how different numbers and arrangements of dots represent different letters in Braille.

He told the children he learned Braille by putting a book under his pillow and waking up to find he knew everything in it.

"It doesn't really work that way, does it boys and girls?" he asked with a smile. "It takes a little work, but it's wonderful when you can do it."

ADAM SHOWED the students how with minor adaptations, like putting Braille markings on playing cards, watches and clothing, blind persons can do almost anything sighted persons can do.

When asked how he can tell colors, Adam said that in his mind he knows what red, blue and yellow look like though he can't actually see them.

"You don't always have to see something in order to know what it looks like," he said.

Adam described the world of his blindness as living in a thick fog, but said it wasn't always this way. As an 11-year-old new to Chicago from Germany, he was at least able to make out buildings and he remembers how awed he was by the city's skyscrapers. Which he now sees only in his memory.

"You have to learn to live with your problems," he said. "It doesn't solve anything to ask why should this happen to me, what did I do to deserve it."

READING FROM a Braille book, Adam told the children the story of a robin with a broken wing who was pitied by all because it didn't know the joys of soaring through the sky. Yet the robin was able, by hopping and clinging to one branch at a time, to get to its nest of babies high up in a tree.

"The robin could've said to itself, 'I never wanted to take care of those rascals anyway and now with my broken wing I can't get up there anyway,' but she didn't," he said. "Did this bird have a handicap?"

"No," the children chorused in response. Adam's message had hit home and he smiled gratefully.

HEINZ ADAM shows Dryden School students the blind can master chess as easily as the sighted with the aid of a specially adapted game board having holes for the pieces to fit in, recessed white squares and metal balls atop the black pieces.

Panel to check track backstretch

Recommendations on how living conditions on the backstretch at Arlington Park Race Track should be improved will be developed by March 1, 1978 by a special committee appointed Monday by the Arlington Heights village board.

The creation of the committee comes as a result of an investigation this summer by the The Daily Herald that detailed substandard living conditions on the race track backstretch where workers reside.

Arlington Heights village trustee Robert H. Miller will head the committee, which will include Lucy Reum, chairwoman of the Illinois Racing Board; State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Frederic Ford, a member of the Arlington Heights Housing Commission and L. A. Hanson, Arlington Heights village manager.

Living conditions, health and welfare, recreation facilities, crime, and fire protection on the backstretch will be reviewed by the committee.

Two additional measures related to improving backstretch conditions also were approved by the village board. Omni House: Youth Services Bureau will pursue the need for counseling of backstretch workers and a housing counselor from Northwest Opportunity Center will work with race track officials to assure that families turned away from the backstretch are properly informed of other housing opportunities.

Home renters restricted

No more than two unrelated persons may rent a single-family house in Arlington Heights, village board members agreed Monday night.

The action is aimed at stopping real estate speculation where houses in residential areas are rented to unmarried persons.

The change was requested by the Virginia Terrace Homeowners Assn. and supported by representatives of several other homeowners groups.

Residents of the Virginia Terrace area first asked for the change in August because of disturbances in the vicinity of 1313 N. Chicago Ave. where three 19-year-old men reportedly rented a house.

"Allowing three unrelated persons to live together opens the door wide open to real estate speculation," said Wayne Arden, president of the Virginia Terrace Homeowner's Assn.

"It causes a clash of lifestyles and we'd like the single-family nature of our neighborhood preserved," he said.

Other residents complained that property values are diminished in areas where unrelated persons rent houses.

School parking limit

Motorists will not be allowed to park, stand or stop from 3 to 4 p.m. on the north side of Burr Oak Drive and the east side of Windsor Drive in the vicinity of Riley School.

The action was taken Monday by the village board in response to the concerns of parents of some Riley School students who believed the parked cars near the school created safety hazards for children. The village board also ordered the intallation of stop signs to make Windsor Drive stop for Burr Oak Drive at the intersection near the school, as well as the installation of an additional crosswalk near the intersection.

Wine tasting license

Liquor licenses permitting wine tasting were granted Monday by the village board to Teddy's Liquors, 135 S. Arlington Heights Road, and Great American Wine Cellar, which plans to open later this month 7-9 Wilke Rd.

Grants sought for jobs for dropouts

Funds that would provide jobs for 48 high school dropouts in six Northwest suburb townships are being sought by the Barrington Youth Service in an application for a $300,000 federal grant.

The agency applied for the grant on behalf of six townships, said Larry Walker, Schaumburg Township youth committee director.

He said the funds also would provide educational training leading to the equivalent of a high school diploma.

The money, available through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, would be divided among Schaumburg, Barrington, Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Maine townships.

WALKER SAID the money would provide full-time employment to eight youths in each of six townships for a nine-month period.

He said painting, plumbing, carpentry and electrical work are some of the skills the grant would allow the youths to develop.

"At this point we are looking for projects for them," Walker said. He said the youths must be employed on public works projects such as renovation of public buildings or working on subsidized housing.

"During the nine months they will receive tutoring and will have a chance to take a high school equivalency exam at the end," Walker said.

THE GRANT WAS filed by the Barrington Youth Service rather than separate applications from each township in order to save time and money in preparing the application, Walker said.

If the grant is approved, the youths will be placed through the youth committee in each township.

Roger Bert, director of the Barrington Youth Service, said the amount of money each township youth agency would receive has not been made final. He said he could nt disclose tentative figures.

Bert said governmental bodies supporting the six youth agencies still must approve the township's application.

Man stages success with frontier taxi service

by DEBBE JONAK

The van and its riders bounced along a rugged gravel road somewhere out in Illinois' hinterland as the black-bearded, blue-jeaned tour guide plugged in another tape.

"I have a lot of strange ideas," he said, glancing back at his five passengers.

The idea today was to shuttle a small group to and from Galena via the most primitive roads this Daniel Boone could map. Today, Galena. Tomorrow, Alaska.

Really. The weekly trek to Galena is but the first leg in Jim Wayman's plan to set up a charter route to Alaska.

"I always wanted to start a stage line to somewhere. Alaska seemed like a good place," he said.

WAYMAN, 34, of 1334 Braver St., Wheeling, is a free lance disc jockey, former taxicab driver, former downhome Iowa boy and general idea man.

He moved to Chicago two years ago from a haunted farm in the corn state. He still looks fresh out of the field with easy ways, earthy dress and ever-present "K-Mart special" engineer's cap.

And here he began to realize his lifetime dream of running a stage line to America's last frontier. The way to start, he decided about two months ago, was to run a line to Galena. From there, he would expand to Iowa, then Minnesota, then Alaska.

So he had his long, flowing locks and long beard cropped to a respectable length.

HE PURCHASED A school van, painted it green and refurbished the inside.

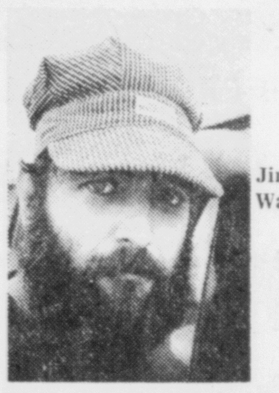
He printed up 1,000 cards to announce, "Half Day Stage/phone 537-4378/35 cents per mile/75 cents per mile private use."

He was ready for business.

Wayman was out in East Dubuque, Ill., promoting his stage line, when he found his first customer. It was not exactly what he had in mind, but it was a fare.

"It was the police chief of East Dubuque. I took him and his prisoner to Freeport," he said.

Since then, Wayman has refined his route. He is flexible, but usually starts early in the morning from the John Hancock Center in Chicago. Stopping occasionally to pick up a passenger, he winds northward through the scenic North Shore.



Jim Wayman

THEN IT'S DUE WEST down Cuba Road through Barrington. And off onto pot-holed side routes, past autumn-hued landscapes of farmhouses, forgotten graveyards, winding rivers and plowed cornfields.

"This is where all the flying saucers came down to pick up some cows," he said with a poker face, pushing his cap farther down on his forehead. "Hey, that's my favorite dog. He chased me one day. So I stopped and let him in. He did, looked around, then got off."

It was not the usual tour guide banter. And there were frequent unscheduled stops, like for a flock of ducks waddling across the street from a river bank. And for two sullen cows hovering near the roadside somewhere outside Elizabeh.

"Want to go to town" he hollered at them. Not even a smile from the cows. He shrugged, slammed the door shut and continued the trip across another plank bridge and up another steep, very steep hill.

THERE WAS A STOP at Dora's Dining room in Rockton for doughnuts. And of course there were the washroom stops. No waiting tensely until the next stop 50 miles ahead. A yell was enough to bring the van screeching to a halt at some small town gas station.

"That's the way the old stagecoaches used to be — just take your time," Wayman said.

The rough ride must be similar to stagecoach travel too. But the scenery more than compensated.

"There are a lot of backroads people don't realize are there. I've taken people who've never been on gravel before," Wayman said. "They're amazed."

The Galena route is a microcosm of the Alaska route, he said.

From this area to Alaska, it will be this way — very rugged and very scenic. This sort of conditions me for it."

HIS PLANS FOR THE Alaska route include "stagestops" every 300 miles or so, and farmhouses where passengers can get a home-cooked meal and a good night's rest.

"I'd like to get crazy things going. Like whenever a stage goes by a certain stop, I'd like to have a band there to meet them," he said.

Setting up he stage line will involve securing licenses in Iowa, Minesota and Alaska. Then, to cross the borders with passengers, he will need Interstate Commerce Commission permission, which is hard to get, he said.

"If I can't get it, then I'll just stop at every border and have the riders walk across, then get back in," he said. The trip could take from four days to two weeks one way.

WAYMAN IS NOT sure there is anyone else who wants to go to Alaska. If not, he has an alternative plan. He will transport food and other goods up to a general store he plans to establish, where he will sell them at Alaska's much higher cost-of-living rates.

Eventually he hopes to move to the barren northlands. He's never been there — only heard stories.

"I like Alaska. I guess because I'm kind of a country person. You know, I really miss Iowa. I guess that's why I like these trips. They remind me.

"But the city's the place to make money," he sighed.

Wayman grew up in Marshalltown, Iowa.

He developed his tastes for both deejaying and traveling as a young man — he switched stations and cities 72 times in 12 years.

"I STARTED AS a disc jockey in high school. I played Bohemian polka music after school," he said. "I was scared to death because I couldn't pronounce any of the names."

From Marshalltown he moved to Des Moines, Tampa, Louisville, California . . . .

"I played everything. I even worked a religious station," Wayman said, admitting he is partial to Texas swing and country rock.

"This is one of my shows now," he said, turning up the volume on the cassette tape player at his knee.

Strains of "Zippity doo dah" — straight from one of Walt Disney's musical cartoons — echoed in the van.

The familiar sleepy voice of Wayman broke in.

"Maybe I oughta go see a psychiatrist like the boss says." Then into some Diana Ross.

SOMEHOW WAYMAN ended up back in Iowa on a farm, which he swears was haunted. He even met a ghostly relative of a man who lived there 150 years ago, he said.

He thought she was a real person who happened to wander into the house, until she dissolved before his eyes, he said.

But a death in the family of a Chicago-born lady friend took him away from the mysterious farm and his much-loved country life.

He suddenly found himself in the City of the Big Shoulders.

He managed to sell his show — "The Out of Focus Hour" — to an Evanston station on a free lance basis, but a bad business deal threw him deeply into debt.

"When it flopped, I became a taxi driver," Wayman said.

HE TOOK A JOB with the American Taxi Co. in Glenview, renting a cab from them and circling the suburbs all day.

"Until I thought, why am I paying them just to work?" he said.

And so the Half Day Stage Line was born.

The conversation in the back of the van had switched from welfare to ghost stories as Wayman approached the quiet, river town of Galena.

"I haven't had to turn any riders away yet," he said with a laugh.

He takes the trip out there about three times a week now. And his clientele is growing slowly as stories of his one-day adventures spread by word of mouth.

Some day, he is sure, he will make it to Alaska.

3 escape injury in 3-car accident

Three men, two of them from Arlington Heights, escaped serious injury Monday in a three-car accident at the intersection of Walnut Avenue and Euclid Steet, in the village.

Police said the accident was caused when a southbound car driven by Carl Anderson, 66, of 827 N. Walnut Ave., ran a red light on Walnut Avenue and collided with a westbound car on Euclid Street driven by Glen R. Larson, 33, of 824 N. Beverly Ave.

Larson's car then hit a car driven by Miltop L. Volpe, 54, of Naperville, who was eastbound on Euclid Street, police said.

Larson and Volpe were treated for minor injuries and released from Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, police said.

Anderson was ticketed for failing to observe right of way, police said. He will appear at 9 a.m., Nov. 28 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Dist. 59 sets guide for promoting kids

mittee. The adopted promotion policy was authored by Mrs. Chavoen, who said she could not compromise her views to go along with the committee.

"TWENTY PEOPLE at last week's committee meeting agreed to policy A and I was very disturbed to get my packet and see three policies," Mrs. Zanca said. "Policy B is Sharon's recommendation and not a minority report."

The two policies are essentially the same except that the adopted measure sets specific performance standards for students on the Iowa tests.

"With plan A the standards would be set by professional educators in the district," Mrs. Zanca said. "It would not be an arbitrary decision."

She and others at the board meeting noted that the Iowa tests were most valid on a group basis and were not intended to be used to determine whether to promote or retain individual students. The tests are administered annually nationwide.

KUCHARSKI COUNTERED that the Iowa tests are all a district has to go on and if officials were to wait for something better to come along, they probably still would be trying to establish criteria for performance next November.

Astronomer finds 'mystery object'

An astronomer announced in Pasadena, Calif. Monday the discovery of a mystery object some 1.5 billion miles from the sun that may be a small planet. The object, about one-sixth the size of Earth's moon, is either inside or beyond the orbit of the seventh planet from the sun, Uranus. Charles Kowal of Cal Tech cautioned against calling the object the 10th planet in the solar system because of its small size and because its orbit has not yet been determined. "I haven't the slightest idea what it is," Kowal told United Press International. "You might say it is a small planet or mini-planet. But it really doesn't resemble anything else. It is definitely not a satellite (moon) of any planet or a comet." The astronomer said the object is about 100 to 400 miles in diameter. By comparison, the solar system's smallest planet, Mercury, is about 3,000 miles in diameter.

Ronny Zamora sentenced to life

Convicted 15-year-old murderer Ronny Zamora — whose TV intoxication defense proved unsuccessful — was sentenced to life in prison Monday by Circuit Judge Paul Baker, who recommended that the boy be placed in a youthful offender facility and receive psychiatric care. Zamora, dressed in white jeans, an open-necked red sports shirt and sandals, stood with his arms folded before the judge showing no reaction as the sentence was read. His mother, sitting behind the defense table, just blinked.

Under Florida law, Zamora must serve at least 25 years in prison before being eligible for parole — meaning he cannot be released until he is at least 40 years old. The state did not seek the death penalty for Zamora, who confessed to the fatal shooting of his next door neighbor, 82-year-old Elinor Haggart, with her own gun.

Carter wants strict drug control

President Carter, linking the national crime rate with heroin abuse, Monday advocated strict controls on all drugs, including barbiturates, which he said may cause as many deaths as illegal narcotics. "We have had a remarkable success already in the first 10 months" in trying to bring the nation's drug problem under control, Carter told a meeting of his newly sworn in Strategy Council, formed to halt drug abuse. He said his administration was trying to seek "control of the so-called legal drugs, the barbiturates, which probably cause as many deaths as . . . the other drugs. The purity of the heroin is at the lowest point it has been in seven years," Carter said in reference to street sales.

JFK death document probe mulled

Federal Judge John Sirica said Monday he would consider making a private review of documents the CIA kept secret for the last 14 years concerning the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The Washington attorney for the Committee to Investigate Assassinations asked Sirica to review a sampling of the 396 documents to decide whether they could be released under the Freedom of Information Act.

Atty. Bernard Fensterwald, who is also executive director of the nationwide committee, said its members were determined "to break the ring of silence surrounding the events in Dallas." Michael Ryan, a counsel for the CIA, argued 93 per cent of the material was denied under legitimate exemptions which CIA affidavits attested would compromise national security or sources and methods. Sirica said he would consider the committee's request to inspect a sampling of the withheld document and also the possibility of appointing an independent master to read the material.

Two states elect governors today

Two states are electing governors today and the contests in both New Jersey and Virginia have unexpectedly turned into near toss-ups in the final days of campaigning. The Democratic underdogs — Gov. Brendan Byrne in New Jersey and Henry Howell in Virginia — prospected for the extra votes that late polls said they would need to overcome their GOP opponents. The Republicans — New Jersey State Sen. Raymond Bateman and Virginia Lt. Gov. John Dalton — worked just as hard to hold on to earlier margins they had built up in mid-campaign public opinion surveys. Turnout could become crucial in both states, and politicians worried about heavy rains that curtailed some campaigning during the weekend.

Israel issues stern warning

Israel Monday warned Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon it might respond with more than artillery fire across the tense frontier if they persist in their rocket attacks in violation of a six-week-old cease-fire. The strong words from Israel came in a report from the frontier by the state-run national radio as Arab leaders engaged in a flurry of diplomatic activity centering on plans to reconvene the Geneva Middle East peace talks. Palestinian forces in southern Lebanon Sunday fired rockets at the Israeli coastal town of Nahariya, killing two civilians. Israel returned artillery fire. "If the attacks continue, then the return fire will not be enough," the radio's correspondent at the frontier quoted security forces as telling him in what was interpreted as a veiled threat to send in ground troops.

'Sex bias charges mount, U.S. can't keep up probes'

The federal office which investigates charges of sex discrimination in schools is so understaffed there are at least 100 outstanding complaints in the Midwest Region encompassing Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin, an official said Monday.

Lawrence Washington, chief of the elementary and secondary education branch of the federal Office for Civil Rights, said his staff of 10 investigators and three secretaries handles approximately 130 cases a year involving alleged sex discrimination, race discrimination, emergency school aid applications, discrimination toward the disabled and surplus property utilizations.

"These absorb existing staff like a sponge," Washington said.

"WE HAVE OVER 100 outstanding (sex discrimination) complaints," he added. "We're supposed to finish up all investigations in 90 days, but our experience tells us it usually takes longer than 90 days.

"Our experience in Title IX (the federal regulation prohibiting sex discrimination in federally funded schools) is somewhat new. Even though the law was passed in 1973, the regulations were not issued until July, 1975.

"I'm not attempting to make excuses," he said. "There's a lot of different reasons why it takes so long . . . we are attempting to find out why."

Washington discounted a report issued Monday by the Project on Equal Education Rights, a research arm of the National Organization for Women, which concluded the federal government has done virtually nothing to stop sex discrimination in the nation's schools.

"THERE ARE A lot of ways you can manipulate figures to create an image that is desirable for a particular purpose, but that's not necessarily true," he said.

However, he said he did not have readily available specific information about outstanding sex discrimination complaints and said UPI would have to submit a written request under the Freedom of Information Act in order to examine files on those complaints.

Washington said under the previous administration complaints were considered a low priority, a condition he contended has changed under President Carter.

"Complaints are currently a priority," he said. "The Office of Civil Rights is being reorganized. We are committed to handling sex discrimination complaints in an expeditious and effective matter.

"They've got to put everything on the drawing board and figure out what resources we have."

Mikva seeks probe of anti-gun control mailing

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, a strong proponent of gun control legislation, has asked the U.S. Dept. of Justice to investigate a mass mailing campaign linking his name to anti-gun control.

Mikva charged in a press conference Monday morning that the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms based in Bellevue, Wash., has violated federal law by printing his name on letters to indicate the messages came from him.

The letters, printed with the Bellevue, Wash., return address, show the phrase "From Congressman Abner Mikva" in the window containing the addressee's name. The letters contain anti-gun control literature offensive to Mikva, who is a proponent of gun control.

MIKVA IS attempting to have the committee investigated for violating mailing rules and a U.S. law which prohibits using a federal employe's name fraudulently.

Mikva said Monday at least 15 to 20 other congressmen's names have appeared in the same mass mailing campaign. Mikva said he first knew of the mailings about five weeks ago, but doesn't know how extensive the campaign is or why it happened.

"Not all the congressmen (whose names appeared on the letters) are opposed to guns. That just makes it even moe confusing and deceiving," Mikva said.

He said the committee and its mailing service, Diversified Mailing Services of Virginia, "are going to inherit the right to keep and bear a lot of trouble " for their actions in sending out the letters and soliciting funds for the anti-gun control lobby.

"It's not my reputation I'm worried about here. People know where I stand on guns. I am worried about the issue (of gun control) being sullied. They're misleading the citizens," he said.

MIKVA SAID HE has not talked with committee chairman Alan Gottlieb about the letters. "I don't care why they're doing it. They used my name without my permission. I'll let the Justice Dept. negotiate with them," he said.

Gottlieb said Monday the names of congressmen appeared accidentally when the envelopes failed to cover them as they were supposed to be.

Gottlieb said that above the name of each addressee was listed that person's congressman. The letter asked that the addressee contact the congressman to voice opposition to gun control.

Gottlieb said that about 12 per cent of the 600,000 letters in the mass mailing contained the error in the address window.

"There's no impropriety in the address," Gottleb said. "It's only a mistake. Besides, he (Mikva) is just using this as a grandstand play to get headlines."

Kusper wants computer vote tabulation for county

County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper Jr. proposed Monday that the county buy a $487,500 computer system that would provide almost instant election returns from suburban Cook County.

Kusper said the computerized vote counting system is "the last, logical step" in the modernization of suburban voting started in 1976 with the introduction of punch card ballots.

The equipment Kusper wants the county to buy would scan the vote tallies not generated by mini-computers in each precinct and report the returns, by telephone line, to a central computer that could give detailed printouts of election results in each race every 15 minutes.

"THE PROCESS would make the voting system in the suburbs of Cook County the most modern in the world," Kusper said.

But County Board Pres. George W. Dunne took a somewhat different view.

"A half million dollar system just to give the news media slightly faster election results is a luxury we can't afford," Dunne told reporters after Monday's county board meeting.

Kusper said the new equipment, manufactured by Computer Election Systems of Berkeley, Calif., the same company that sold the Votomatic punch card ballot machines to the county, would pay for itself in 3 to 9 years because of anticipated savings in the cost of canvassing elections.

The county board took no action Monday on Kusper's proposal.

Carey's attack of judge protested

Two area bar associations Monday charged Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey with attempting to "intimidate the judiciary" in a controversy surrounding a suburban judge's handling of a case involving the assault of a 10-year-old girl.

The presidents of the North and Northwest Suburban Bar Associations said Carey's attack on Associate Judge Jack G. Stein is "politically motivated" and a threat to "the rights of citizens."

Robert S. Fritzhall, president of the North Suburban Bar Assn., added his association is considering filing with the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission of the state supreme court an official complaint against Carey.

CAREY MONDAY labeled the lawyers' statements as "self-serving" and "a smoke screen to protect (their) interests."

The controversy surrounds a Skokie case in which a bus driver, Larry Starks, was accused of taking indecent liberties with a 10-year-old girl. Stein, presiding at the Oct. 24 trial, ruled in two separate hearings that assistant state's attorneys failed to qualify a key witness as an expert to testify.

Bernard Carey

The witness, Robert Gonsowski, is a former Illinois Bureau of Investigation employe who conducted tests on the victim's hat and allegedly found sperm present.

Gonsowski did not testify, and a jury later found Starks innocent.

Carey has filed a complaint against Stein with the Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board.

Arlington Heights attorney John Biestek, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., said a 10-member committee of lawyers he appointed to investigate the case found the judge "was well within the bounds of his judicial discretion in refusing to allow Robert Gonsowski to testify."

"MR. CAREY'S statement in this is 'you either rule my way or incur my wrath,' " Biestek said. "I think it's important for everyone to realize that the judiciary has to be free from influence from state's attorneys or attorneys in general."

Biestek called Carey's actions "totally unjustified," saying the state's attorney was "politically motivated or motivated by the ineptitude" of his assistants.

In a statement released Monday morning, Carey chided the associations' statements, saying defense attorneys "are the prime beneficiaries of such outrageous rulings."

"Mr Gonsowski was qualified as an expert in 7 criminal cases," Carey said. "He has personaily conducted 2,000 tests for the presence of sperm and his abilities were tested and certified by the state every six months. Isn't it strange that his credentials were never successfully challenged before?"

Carey said the associations "in their haste to defend this unprecedented abuse of judicial discretion . . . strangely ignore the rights of the 10-year-old sexually molested victim."

SAM BERKLEY of the state's attorney's office said Carey consulted with him last Tuesday. Berkley also defended the two assistants in his office who prosecuted the case, Jay Crane and Donald Devlin.

"What is so sacrosanct about criticizing a judge?" Berkley said. He said Carey's actions against Stein are "the only way the state's attorney can make known his feelings on this."

Stein had no comment Monday.

Carter postpones nine-nation trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. State Dept. announced Monday that President Carter has postponed the nine-nation trip he was scheduled to start Nov. 22, but hopes to make the journey in December or January instead.

The reason given for the delay was Carter's desire to remain in Washington until Congress completes work on his energy package, a job it is not likely to finish for several weeks.

Carter has said repeatedly that the nation faces an energy crisis and getting an energy package approved this year is his No. 1 priority. He planned to make a televised speech on the subject Tuesday night.

AT THE WHITE House, press secretary Jody Powell said Carter hopes the trip can be rescheduled "at some date after Christmas."

"The postponement of such a trip is of course unfortunate," he said. "But we made our priorities in this quite clear."

Powell said foreign nations are watching to see what the United States does on energy.

SEC. OF STATE Cyrus Vance said the president informed foreign leaders over the weekend that he would not make his scheduled trip, and explained why. But he said Carter also told them he hoped to visit their nations later.

Vana forfeits bond money of $3,500

Richard T. Vana of Des Plaines Monday missed his last chance to turn himself into police and lost $3,500 in bail money to the Cook County Circuit Court.

Vana, 55, of 966 Howard St., is charged with bilking Western Union Telegraph Co. out of more than $400,000 last year in a phony money order scheme.

Last month, Circuit Judge Lewis A. Wexler ordered that an arrest warrant for Vana be issued after the defendant did not appear for his trial Oct. 6. As a result of not showing up for a final judgment date Monday, Vana loses $3,500 bail money he used to bond out of jail with earlier this year.

Wexler said Monday that if caught Vana cannot be given any bond and must be held at the Cook County Jail prior to and during his trial.

Vana owns three cab companies which provide service to Des Plaines and Palatine.

First, some straight talk — Let's face it. It costs you more every year to heat or cool your home no matter what type of fuel you use. And chances are the cost will continue to rise.
Why Insulspray? — In most homes, more heat escapes through the walls than from anywhere else. New Insulspray foam insulation effectively reduces costly heat loss through walls as never before possible.
What is Insulspray? — Insulspray is a non-toxic, two-part insulation system made of liquid urea-formaldehyde resin plus a hardener containing a foaming agent.
How is Insulspray installed? — Insulspray is installed from the outside, without mess, and usually in one day. It is applied directly into the hollow stud space within the outer walls of your home. It flows up and down around obstacles and fills every crack and crevice. Insulspray leaves no uninsulated pockets.
What are the advantages? — Your home stays warmer in winter, cooler in summer. And your fuel costs drop considerably.

Bomb found in industrial park driveway

by PAT DOYLE

Paul Reed is going to be more careful about picking up litter from now on.

He is accustomed to stabbing scraps of cardboard and paper with a poker and stuffing them in a sack. Monday he jabbed at a bundle of tape and found it wasn't ordinary litter. It was a bomb.

But Reed is not a man to let a little thing like an explosive device shake him up. Inspecting the bomb, he placed it in the sack with the other items he found that morning in the parking lots and drives of Rogers Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village.

The maintenance man took the sack to his boss, Joe Bagley, and showed him the bomb. Bagley was less casual than Reed. He put it inside a cement container in the lot and called police.

A COOK COUNTY bomb squad took the device apart in the lot behind the industrial park leasing office at 1551 Elmhurst Rd. They spilled the gunpowder on the pavement and lit it. Elk Grove Village firefighters washed away what remained of the powder.

Village police are trying to determine who put the bomb in the lot and why. What remains of it is at the police department.

As bombs go, it was relatively small, police said. "It's very difficult to determine what kind of damage it would have caused, if any," said Deputy Chief William Kohnke.

The bomb had a fuse but no timing device, Kohnke said. There was no evidence that the fuse had been lit, he said.

Kohnke said Monday that police had no leads on a motive for the placement of the bomb beteen two warehouses. The device would not have caused as much damage exploding in the open as it would have inside a building he said.

"IT WAS LYING here like a piece of garbage," Reed said. "I poked it and it felt like metal. I was curious so I picked it up.

"I looked at it closer and saw there were four cylinders and powder," he said. "I was ready to throw the bag out and said, 'Hey Joe, I found a weird looking package.' "

Bagley couldn't imagine who would put the bomb in the lot. "It's pretty strange," he said. "That's the furthest thing from my mind."

Reed said he was not scared about picking up the bomb and carrying it in his litter sack. But just the same, "I'll be more careful next time."

A SOMBER PAUL Reed refects on bomb he found on a grassy parkway of a parking lot in an Elk Grove Village industrial park. Reed says the experience Monday taught him to be more careful adout picking up garbage.

Panel holds assessment bills till spring session

From our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Homeowners looking to the Illinois General Assembly for relief from skyrocketing real estate tax assessments will have to look elsewhere.

The Illinois House rules committee Monday voted to hold a package of legislation sponsored by both Democratic and Republican lawmakers until the spring session.

"I think it was a pretty cavalier way to handle this," said State Rep. James McCourt, R-Evanston.

McCOURT, STATE Rep. Woods Bowman, D-Chicago, and several other lawmakers had presented 16 bills dealing with tax assessments.

The legislative acitivity was provoked by last summer's taxpayer "revolt" in the North and Northwest suburbs. Homeowners had threatened to withhold tax payments because massive assessment increases brought huge tax hikes.

McCourt and Bowman agreed that efforts to reform the assessment process appear dead for the fall session.

"I had thought there was a chance to act on this legislation in the fall, especially since the governor decided not to call a special session of the legislature," McCourt added.

THE SHOCK OVER big tax increases are expected to spread to Elk Grove, Maine, Schaumburg and Hanover townships in the Northwest suburbs next year when the quadrennial assessments are completed.

Bowman said while delaying legislative consideration until next year will not hurt some bills, others could have had an impact on the upcoming tax bills.

Under the House rules, the fall session is limited to consider vetoed legislation and bills approved by committees. The rules committee must agree to exempt any other bills for consideration.

Among Bowman's bills was a measure which sought to balance the difference between the first and second tax bills. Current law requires the first installment to be no more han 50 per cent of the preceding year's bill. The result is that higher taxes caused by increased assessments are tacked onto the second installment.

OTHER BILLS sidetracked by the committee would allow reassessments by township rather than county or district, allow three tax payments per year rather than two and place a ceiling of 25 per cent on tax increases.

McCourt and Bowman said efforts could be made to bypass the rules committee, but suspected such a move would be fruitless.

"When the Republican leadership also blocks the bills, there isn't much chance," Bowman said.

Area anti-nuclear group supports Carter's veto

Northwest suburban anti-nuclear forces are mounting a letter-writing campaign to urge the U.S. Congress to support President Carter's veto of the Clinch River breeder reactor in Tennessee.

Catherine Quigg, president of the Palatine-based Pollution and Environmental Problems, said she already has contacted her members about the President's veto, which was announced Saturday.

"I've already called my people," Mrs. Quigg said. "It is important that everybody who opposes this plutonium reactor write their representatives and strongly urge them to sustain President Carter."

Mrs. Quigg said her group and others across the country have been working since last spring to stop construction of the Clinch River breeder reactor, which would produce more nuclear fuel than it consumes.

CRITICS OF THE breeder reactor say it will lead to a steady increase in the number of nations armed with nuclear weapons. They also say they fear the plant because it would produce plutonium, which can be converted for use in atomic bombs.

In announcing the veto, Carter rejected a bill that would have authorized $80 million for construction of the plant. He said the plutonium produced by the plant would "imperil the administration's policy to curb proliferation of nuclear weapons technology."

Mrs. Quigg praised the President's action, saying "It was a very courageous stand on his part." She said there was a lot of pressure from pronuclear forces, who see the plant as an unlimited source of nuclear fuel in the future.

In campaigning against the Clinch River breeder reactor, Mrs. Quigg said she found a growing awareness of nuclear problems. She said Carter's veto will focus even more attention on the issue.

Congress ceases routine; energy bill conferees meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is in an unusual position. It has adjourned without adjourning.

As far as day-to-day activities go, the Senate and House have ceased normal operations at least until the end of November.

The novel approach is designed to let Senate-House negotiators work on energy legislation without interruption from floor activity.

The energy conferees met again Monday, slowly working their way through the complex, many-faceted package that was given top priority for the first session of the 95th Congress.

CONGRESS WILL not officially adjourn until it sends an energy bill to the White House and there is no indication how soon that will happen.

Under an arrangement worked out between Speaker Thomas O'Neill and Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, Congress is in a holding pattern.

The House will meet every Tuesday and Friday in pro forma sessions until Nov. 29, when it is scheduled to resume regular business. No legislation will be acted on during that period.

The Senate will generally follow the same pattern, although Byrd has scheduled Nov. 15 and Nov. 18 as "work" days to dispose of secondary bills and conference reports.

CONGRESS HAS TO meet every third day to fulfill a constitutional requirement that prevents them from being out longer periods without passing a resolution that would leave the leadership with less flexibility.

Should the energy conferees finish their deliberations before Nov. 29 — which is not expected — O'Neill and Byrd could call Congress back into regular session. They also have the authority to call the Senate and House into action in the event of an emergency.

County hospital emergency care protested by doctors

waiting time to half an hour.

Emergency room doctors work six, 10-hour days a week for 4 weeks at a time. There are 8 to 10 doctors on duty at any one time. In the 3½ years Wadley has been at County Hospital, he said the number of doctors has been cut, so that "we wind up seeing more patients, with fewer doctors."

INTERNISTS AT County Hospital typically work 60-to 80-hour weeks; surgeons 100 to 120 hours a week, Dr. Peter Orriss said.

"The day is supposed to be 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. But that means you get in at 7 a.m. and often wind up staying to 5 or 6 p.m.," Orriss said. "If a patient has a particular problem, you're in on Saturday or Sunday.

"You sleep when you can and a lot of times you just don't sleep much at all," Conway said. "There have been studies that show a person's judgment declines after loss of sleep. EKGs (electrocardiograms) have been shown to doctors who have gone without sleep, and to doctors who are rested, and the way they interpret that EKG is quite different.

"PLUS, DOCTORS know that they lose empathy, sympathy with their patient. In severe sleep loss, even strong psychotic symptoms can develop," Conway said.

DOCTORS AT Cook County Hospital attend to an emergency patient Monday during a job action to dramatize their demands for improved patient care. Doctors say they work 60 to 100 hours a week treating patients at County Hospital.

County hospital background data

The Cook County Hospital is a tax-supported institution that accepts many patients who are poor and cannot get medical help elsewhere. A resident with a $10,000 assessment on his home this year will pay $22 to the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission, which also operates Cermak Hospital at the county jail and Oak Forest Hospital, a nursing home and rehabilitation center.

The medical staff at Cook County Hospital currently is renegotiating its contract with the Health and Hospitals Governing Commission, and doctors Monday staged a job action to call attention to their demands for improved patient care.

County hospital is old, big — about three times as many beds as Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights — and in debt.

Money is not the real object of the doctors' contract demand this time, Conway said. "We asked for a 7 per cent raise and they (the governing commission) are at 5.5 per cent right now. But this has always been a flexible position," he said.

Instead, the thrust of the doctors' actions appear to be a sincere effort to better the lot of patients. Among their current demands, in addition to better emergency service, are:

- Having emergency room X-rays developed and in the doctors' hands within one hour.
- Staffing of the hospital's intensive care unit at a level of 20 beds.
- Having a Spanish-speaking interpreter available in emergency and outpatient departments 24 hours a day.

Negotiations are expected to resume today.

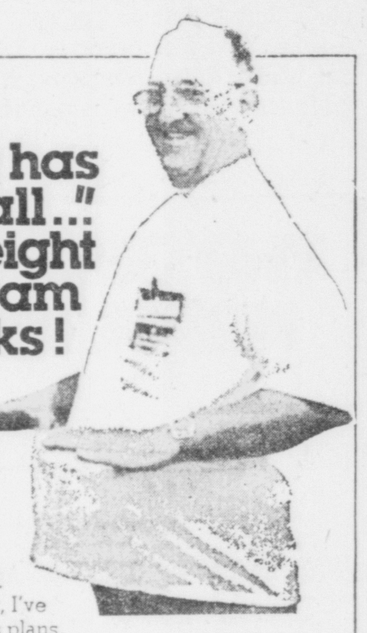
Pharmacist has "tried them all..." ...discovers weight control program that really works!



Pharmacist Dan Smith of Burger's Drug Store in St. Charles, Illinois is a NaturSlim "believer" after losing 18 pounds in just two weeks. After hearing so much about the NaturSlim program from customers and seeing the excellent results they were having, Dan decided to try it himself.

"In my many years as a pharmacist, I've seen and tried numerous weight-loss plans, but none have worked as well for me as NaturSlim. And NaturSlim is very nutritional too!"

After three months, Dan has not regained any of the lost pounds either, as so often happens when "rebounding" from starvation diet plans. He maintains his weight by taking NaturSlim once daily . . . and eating normally otherwise.

Dan says, "It was surprisingly easy, too! I didn't have to attend any weigh-ins, starve myself or do any special exercises."

With the NaturSlim program, there are no shots, drugs or long lists of forbidden foods. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day.

The next time you are in the St. Charles area, stop by Burger's Drugs and see Dan yourself. He'll tell you personally what he thinks about NaturSlim!

Teachers abuse use of sick days

For years, teachers have been plagued by students who play hookey.

It now seems to have reached the point where principals have to deal with hookey-playing teachers.

A recent study commissioned by the Illinois Board of Education found that teacher absenteeism has increased 16 per cent between 1972 and 1976. Locally, school districts spend at least $2 million on salaries for substitute teachers.

Part of the problem, school officials say, is that teachers' unions have succeeded in negotiating increased numbers of sick days for teachers and teachers have developed the attitude that they are "entitled" to the full number of sick days, whether they are sick or not.

This has resulted in some disturbing patterns. The state study found that 46 per cent of teacher absences occur on Monday and Friday. Teachers, like their students, enjoy long weekends, and some are not above using sick days to get them.

The destructive example this sets for students is obvious. Students who are told they must attend school see adults in authority abusing their sick leave privileges and lose respect for the value of regular attendance.

In addition, the problems of substitute teachers are well-known. Students may not be rowdy with the substitute, but they certainly don't learn as much as with a regular teacher.

There are some remedies available for school districts faced with this problem. And school administrators ought to enlist the aid of teachers' unions to implement them.

One solution would be to require a doctor's certificate for teachers who have been sick for more than a few days. In addition, allowing teachers to accumulate large numbers of sick days over the years can be curtailed and replaced by a more easily regulated disability pay system for those who suffer long-term illnesses.

Officials of Alsip Dist. 126 in the southwest suburbs have used such techniques with some success. In addition, Dist. 126 rewards teachers with good attendance records.

What is needed for any anti-absentee program to work is for individual teachers and their leaders to revive a belief in the old-fashioned idea that claiming to be sick to get out of work is wrong.

Teachers work hard to instill a sense of responsibility in their students. They must demonstrate that they feel that responsibility when it comes to their own jobs.

Happiness is Santa-bus

Christmas shopping can be a hassle, but thanks to the Regional Transportation Authority, some shoppers will get a lift during the holiday season — a free lift courtesy of Santa Claus.

The idea is to surprise bus passengers with a free ride in hopes of boosting ridership by introducing the uninitiated to public transportation. Santa Claus will hop on board buses at random beginning Dec. 3, and will put a cover on the fare box. Wherever Santa rides, everyone else rides free.

The RTA idea is a novel one, appropriate for the holiday season when traffic is snarled in the shopping push. Riding the buses is one way to avoid the traffic congestion, and the free ride is a way of making it even more enjoyable.

The cost of the program is $28,600, but if the RTA can entice some new riders, it will be worth it.

Besides, meeting Santa on a bus will give everyone an extra chance to make sure he knows what we want for Christmas. And think of the rest it will give the reindeer.

New arms agreement gives Soviets first strike chance

Paul Greenberg

When it was announced that a new strategic arms agreement with the Soviet Union was in the offing, it was a while before any specifics began to emerge from Washington. One can now understand why. The new agreement doesn't sound like anything to brag about. At least not for the American negotiators to brag about. As for the Soviet ones, bonuses and dachas all around.

The Soviet Union now has agreed to limit the number of its most formidable missiles (the SS-18) to 308. Moscow presents this as a great concession, but add the 300 SS-18s to the 800 other missiles armed with multiple warheads that the Soviets are allowed under this new agreement, and some arms experts say the Soviet Union would be in a position to launch a decisive First Strike against the United States some time during the eight-year life of this treaty.

That danger is increased because the new agreement would impose a three-year moratorium on full development of the cruise missile, the American answer to the Soviet preponderance in nuclear firepower. Its range would be severely limited and the most imposing strategic deterrent in the American arsenal would be converted to only a tactical weapon.

THE TREATY PLACES no such limit on the Soviet Backfire bomber, though the Russians have made a vague promise to continue production only at the current rate of two a month. Moscow claims the Backfire is only a tactical weapon, anyway. But other sources say it is being fitted with more efficient engines and a refueling capacity that makes it an intercontinental threat. In return for this unsatisfactory promise about the Backfire, the United States has agreed not to develop its MX mobile missile.

The outline of this agreement suggests that the Carter Administration has made a Napoleonic retreat from the agreement it proposed in Moscow last March, when it wanted to limit the Soviets to only 150 SS-18s and put off any limits on the cruise missile or Backfire bomber until later. An unrestricted arms race might come to seem almost comforting compared to an agreement that would seem to restrict mainly the American side.

Perhaps the most troubling aspect of this treaty is the absence of any way to verify Soviet compliance with even its generous terms. Without fear of exposure, Moscow could be tempted, if not already planning, to move fully into production of the Backfire, or to develop and deploy the next generation of Soviet missiles (the SS-19) with a nuclear payload three to four times that of those it would replace.

THE ASSURANCE THAT Paul Nitze offered when being considered for this country's chief arms negotiator keeps coming back, sounding a little more hallow each time: "I think . . . that an agreement which is not verifiable is worse than no agreement." That may prove the principal objection to the treaty Nitze now has negotiated.

Not the least disturbing aspect of this deal is what it says about Jimmy Carter's negotiating techniques. Once again the President has started out with a proposal worthy of cheering, as he did in his drive to expand human rights, only to shift gears noticeably within a few months. Having revved up the great engine of the world's hopes, he proceeds at a walk. The President appears to be a great starter, but some doubt is beginning to arise about his finishing.

YET THE PRESIDENT seems unfazed. As though he didn't realize what he was giving up. One might be more assured if he sounded a little more worried now and then, if he didn't appear uniformly confident about his negotiating skill and his "comprehensive" (that may be his favorite word) grasp of the issues. Nobody can be taken in a poker game quite like the fellow who just knows he's going to win. And this is too important a game to lose.

The other day, pressed for some sign of progress somewhere, Carter blurted out something about the new arms agreement being ready "in a few weeks." That gives American negotiators a deadline to work under while their Soviet counterparts, as usual, will be prepared to work into the next generation.

This is the classic pattern that goget-'em American negotiators seem to fall into when dealing with the Russians, who could outsit a stone wall. It took them only a couple of months of doing nothing to wear Carter's first arms proposal down to so little. Now his wanting to finish up the agreement within a few weeks can exert pressure only on the American side.

By the time an American president learns better than to negotiate with the Soviets in this fashion, it's usually the end of his term and time to make way for a new chief executive determined to engineer a solution to the most complicated and dangerous problems within six months, or preferably the First Hundred Days. And so the Russians get to play their waiting game against a new hand.

Carter remains brave, clean, and reverent. One might buy a used car from him any time. But on the basis of the negotiating skill he has demonstrated, whether with Congress, various pressure groups, or the Soviet Union, would you trust him to sell a used car for you?

Two-party system has four parties

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the reasons American politics often confuses its own citizens may be the insistence of politicians that it is a "two-party system." That is a confusing claim because anyone who looks at American politics can see at least four parties and very little system.

The labels may differ, but in real terms there are two Democratic parties and two Republican parties. These parties-within-parties attempt to unite during election years, but the plaster usually cracks as soon as the votes are counted.

For a period after World War II, political scientists, who yearn for the kind of logical order that can be demonstrated in chemistry or physics, were able to neatly divide the Democrats and Republicans into "congressional" and "presidential" parties. The congressional, sometimes called "regional," Democrats and Republicans were the conservative wings; the presidential or "national" parties were home for the moderates and liberals.

THOSE CLASSIFICATIONS fell apart during the 1960s. In 1972, the "liberal" Democrats found their presidential candidate in the Senate. In 1976, the "conservative" Republican presidential aspirant was a former big state governor.

In the 1972-76 period, political observers tried to keep the Democrats straight by referring to "regular" or "old line" party members as opposed to "New Politics" or "reform" Democrats. Because there were "liberals" and "conservatives" in both groups, those labels were useless in trying to describe the bitter divisions that followed the party's 1968 and 1972 defeats.

Jimmy Carter came on the scene as a politician identified with neither wing of the party, a situation that allowed the office-hungry adherents of both Democratic factions to join him in a shaky but successful coalition in 1976.

Carter's problems with a Congress dominated almost two-to-one by Democrats may be the sign that his party is reverting to the congressional-presidential division of the 1940s and 1950s.

MEANWHILE, the moderate-conservative Republican coalition that Richard Nixon used to rout the liberals in 1968 and 1972 blew up with Watergate, and the GOP reverted to a conservative-liberal civil war. There are some who felt the Republicans, who now qualify as an endangered species, would unite to avoid extinction, but there is new evidence that the suicidal instinct still is strong.

Last week, Carter nominated Samuel D. Zagoria to fill one of the Republican seats on the Federal Election Commission, whose six places are equally divided by law between the "two parties."

Zagoria was not one of the people recommended for the job by House Republican leader John J. Rhodes or Senate GOP leader Howard Baker. Rhodes expressed outrage, telling the Washington Post that some Republicans felt the appointment might cost the GOP 25 House seats as a result of unfavorable FEC rulings on election laws.

Is Zagoria some bloodthirsty partisan Democrat? Not exactly. He is a former administrative assistant to Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J. and a registered Republican of 20 years standing. But the conservatives dominating the GOP congressional leadership consider him a "liberal" and therefore unsuited for a Republican seat on the election commission.

Park foe gives reply

In rebuttal to remarks made by Fred Meyer and Park Director Paul Derda on the Schaumburg Park District referendum:

The statements of Mr. Fred Meyer, co-chairman of Kingsport Homeowners Assn., made in The Daily Herald of Thursday, Oct. 20, calling me, as the Lancer Park Homeowners Assn. president, a "professional nit-picker" and that "a vote against the referendum was a vote against the kids" are absurd and highly deplorable on his part as an officer of his association.

I wish to point out that Lancer Park Homeowners Assn. (LPHA) throughout its existence has maintained the highest professional conduct in dealing with issues concerning the residents of Schaumburg. Nowhere have we ever objected to a place for teen-agers to meet. Where was he when LPHA requested the village of Schaumburg to turn the old municipal building (the Barn) into a teen center? Where was he when Spectrum, the youth oriented organization in our village asked for volunteers to help teenagers? Mr. Meyer's criticism indicates ignorance about the issues and we feel that he has demonstrated very poor judgment in his selection of words.

Mr. Paul Derda's statements are very misleading when he states that LPHA and I didn't really care about the recreational needs in the community as a whole, having Meineke Center at their doorstep. He also pointed out that we opposed the referendum because the new facilities were not to be built in Lancer Park. This is not true. We have repeatedly said there is a definite need for recreational facilities in the Sheffield area; we are opposed to his overly extravagant plans. He is trying desperately to embark on a scheme of the divide and rule philosophy.

We feel the people of Schaumburg are very intelligent and sophisticated enough that they will not allow this to happen. We sincerely urge the Park District commissioners to urge Mr. Derda to refrain from his lies which have done nothing but cause irreparable damage to the park district. Mr. Derda admitted that the time and climate were bad for any tax referendum and that they knew this from the beginning. Why he insisted on going ahead and asking the voters to pass a referendum requiring a huge sum of money is beyond our comprehension. His attempt afterwards to blame LPHA for the defeat of the referendum definitely sounds like "sour grapes."

Malik C. Parkash, President
Lancer Park Homeowners Association

'Stop clubhouse'

Congressman Crane, Surrey Ridge residents and every person who helped the Arlington Heights Park Board obtain the Nike land or who voted for the $1.5 million referendum are being disregarded by a board which insists it knows better than the people what is best for the people. Despite citizen protests, despite an obvious lack of citizen support (indicated by spot surveys and by Comr. Graham's comments) and despite a request for more extensive surveys of the taxpayers' opinions, the board refused to delay its vote on the clubhouse although two new architectural plans were just presented that night and had not even been fully or fairly examined. The board did not even make an attempt to cut any frills from their plan before voting; no attempt was made to economize. The board voted 3-2 on the clubhouse. Why such haste? Why such disregard for citizens?

No wonder the board can calmly say: "The golf course budget before the referendum only called for a $300,000 clubhouse because no decisions had been made on what facilities the building should have . . ." Where did the $300,000 figure come from if no research was done before the referendum? How dare the board ask the voter to support a referendum in which specifics are unknown! Did the $300,000 get thrown into the pot because it is such a lovely round number? The voters went to the polls and supported the board; the voters expected the board to live up to its contract with the citizens. If the board fails to abide by its agreement, it is breaking faith with the taxapyers.

The argument that the board can't reconsider this issue today because the bids were hastily issued to prevent further discussion only substantiates the belief that the board wants to do exactly what it pleases because it pleases.

If the board is worried about legal obligations to the bidders, shouldn't it be a little sensitive to the citizens it represents? It is not too late for the board to prove it really represents the people. It should cut the costs and reconsider the clubhouse.

Press influence needs outside monitors

by PHILIP LESLY

We are surrounded by universal and instant information that plays on our minds and hearts with picture tubes, transistors, magnetic tapes, newspapers and other stretchers of the psyche.

Media in the United States are by far the most unfettered in the world. And they are the only completely autocratic factor in America today - answerable to no one, and, until recently, protected by the First Amendment in our Bill of Rights even from questioning. Public groups have made small inroads into the amount of violence on television; there are letters to the editor, a few ombundsmen, and a few op ed pages — but they are all controlled by the managements of the media themselves.

So we find one of the great glories of the American system — the Bill of Rights — making possible the one closed power structure in our society.

STILL, ALL FORCES that get out of line find new forces arising to counterbalance them. What is beginning to counterbalance the absolute power of the media is, ironically, competition for the market — the very force that they have given little attention in reporting on our economic system.

Even the hold on television broadcast material held by a few persons in midtown Manhattan is being shaken by competition they have helped create through their very close grip. Advertisers who have little to say about programming have joined with programmers who have tired of the "take it or leave it" conditions they faced to develop independent means of getting programming on the air.

To understand the development of the media, we need to understand the nature and the motivation of many editorial staff people. For a long time young people who had been slighted by established businesses because of their ethnic or religious backgrounds have gone into the media (as well as government, social work and education), harboring some bitterness against the establishment.

MEDIA NATURALLY attract people who are enamored of ideas, rather than practical facts. That accounts for much of the dissidence between the practical-minded businessman and the idea-minded journalist. The journalist feels that the practical businessman, who doesn't appreciate the concepts that move him, is insensitive, inhumane, and crass.

At the same time, all studies show that people coming out of our schools, including journalism schools, are poorly prepared, especially for dealing with the many complex subjects of today-including business. They have lower reading ability, less patience with digging for facts, less emphasis on logic, and lower abilities and discipline in writing. In addition, suspicion and attack against responsible groups and individuals have been emphasized to them far more than previously.

Robert Scheer, who did the Playboy interview with Jimmy Carter that caused a furor during the elction campaign, has expressed this most pungently:

"The journalist's job is to get the story by breaking into their offices, by bribing, by seducing people, by lying, by anything else . . ."

Journalists openly debated whether this philosophy was sound. So we see the very practices that the media attack in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in the White House and by law enforcers are considered proper for media people by many of them.

THE DECISION MAKERS of The New York Times, ABC, CBS, NBC, Public Boradcasting Service, "Time" and "Newsweek" are all within one square mile. In this same circle are many major book publishers, the Associated Press and United Press International. The Washington Post is tied by ownership to "Newsweek." Various "story lines" and judgments on what is the "public interest" go through all of them like measles in a schoolroom.

The same polls that show declining public regard for the leadership of business, government and other institutions also show its regard is low for the media. A Harris poll found that confidence in the press declined from only 26 per cent in 1975 to 20 per cent in 1976. Confidence in television news dropped from 35 per cent to 28 per cent. Some media people are wondering whether their massive assaults on the public's confidence in all pillars of society are reaping for the media what they have sown.

There is also increasing attention to inadequate treatment of many complex subjects, particularly the shallow treatment of business news. Even on the network news we hear a story on a big new government spending program, followed by the fact that the market was down 10.55 for the day — and not a hint that these two items might be related.

ALL UNRESTRAINED excesses cause their own demise. Every force that has grown too powerful in America has been counterbalanced. Around the turn of the century business thought it had freedom from all restraints, as the media do now. Public outrage proved otherwise. The very ability of the mass media to alter the lives of most people may be creating the momentum to shift control. Millions of persons who are familiar with a given story have become aware of distortions or inaccuracies. Each time television depicts the people in South Boston or Marquette Park as mindless bigots, it creates thousands of additional skeptics about the media.

This presents a grave problem. The wrong kind of reaction to the influence of the media, if it interferes with a truly free and responsible information system, would do great damage to all our freedoms and standards. There seem to be two ways to temper the problem without interfering with a free press:

- Encouragement and more visibility for independent public monitors. Few journalists repeatedly will go on risking exposure among their peers of distortion or incompetence.

Kurtis brings world view to local news

Five minutes with WBBM-TV anchorman Bill Kurtis will convince you why an abbreviated 10 p.m. newscast should devote minutes of precious airtime to the current conflict in Rhodesia.

It's thousands of miles away from the Chicago area, you say, so why should a racial struggle in Rhodesia mean anything to us?

Well, Kurtis is making his case during a series of special five-minute reports through Thursday this week on Channel 2's 10 p.m. news.

After having spent a week in Rhodesia with a camera crew, his reports on Joshua M. Como's freedom fighters, a new breed of mercenaries patroling for guerrillas, children learning English in a dirt floor classroom and an interview with Prime Minister Ian Smith are full of insight.

It's the kind of news reporting you would not expect to see on a local Chicago news broadcast five years ago, but Channel 2 has helped to change all that.

THE 37-YEAR-OLD veteran anchorman has done a lot of the globe-trotting himself since returning to work at the station in 1973 after a three-year stint as a correspondent for the West Coast Bureau of CBS news.

In March 1975, Kurtis traveled to Saigon two weeks before it fell and sent back film of the last shipload of "orphan airlift" children as part of a five-part report that earned him a local Emmy Award.

Soon afterward he traveled to Ireland to investigate allegations of Chicago-Irish money going to the Irish Republican Army and in September 1976 he followed a group of hijacked Chicagoans to Paris where he spent a tense 24 hours documenting their plight at the hands of Croatian Nationalists.

SO FAR THIS YEAR, Kurtis has traveled to Panama for a special series of reports on the canal and its controversies, to Kenya where he was witness to a tribal massacre and most recently to Rhodesia to assess guerrilla warfare in one of the world's most troubled spots.

Some viewers argue that they tune in local Chicago newscasts for local and state news and would prefer to leave the global reporting to the networks.

But, Kurtis and his bosses offer a different perspective on the role of international news coverage in their broadcast.

"LOCAL NEWS IS THE core of what we do, but the news we are dealing with in the 1970s is different, It is a depressed time for big changes locally and in the world. It is a quieter political scene," he said.

"So that we don't have to resort to doing puff pieces just for the sake of local news, we choose to do reports on events or people that our audience should know about, even though they may be in some other land," Kurtis said. "The challenge is up to us to relate what it is that is going on in Belfast or Vietnam to the people in Chicago in a meaningful way."

Of course, Kurtis admits that the special reports of his "Focus" unit are "a little self-serving." "I may have the best job on television right now," he said. "I can cover any story I want to locally and travel anywhere in the world to do special reports. I am able to pursue any challenge in the business."

THERE IS THE STREAK of the adventurer running through the Kansas native who fell in "love at first sight" with broadcast journalism while obtaining a degree from Washburn University School of Law.

"I was working for a small station in Topeka when we were caught in the wake of a destructive tornado," Kurtis said. "The potential for radio and television flashed before my eyes as I realized how the media can affect people and touch their lives."

Kurtis came to work for WBBM-TV the day Sen. Charles Percy's daughter was murdered. He was swept into covering the disturbances of the '60s that locally included the 1968 Democratic Convention and the Conspiracy Seven Trial, and nationally included the trials of Charles Manson, Angela Davis, Daniel Ellsberg and Juan Corona.

KURTIS WAS AROUND for the 1971 Los Angeles earthquake and still is noted for having rescued a drowning boy from a lagoon while covering a Marquette Park story. He is handling admirably his many on-camera responsibilities while, as a recent widower, learning all about microwave bacon for breakfast and PTAs. And he maintains a strong belief in world news coverage on the local level.

He is an anchorman who loves reporting first and who struggles to give the news a respectable place while understanding it is sandwiched between the dominent entertaining facets of television.

"Of course we are hoping the reports on Rhodesia will help attract more viewers during this month's ratings period," Kurtis said. "But, I think it goes beyond that. We've accepted the challenge of what a local newscast can be. We are willing to forego some of the soft features and travel to where there are heated conflicts going on to bring a chunk of the world back to Chicago."

"What's going on in Rhodesia and Southern Africa right now is more interesting than another murder on Chicago's South Side," he said.

One thing is for certain. Kurtis knows that African elephants can be a lot tougher than Chicago politicians. The concluding segment of this week's "Focus" report Thursday is devoted partially to a "near miss" Kurtis had with a herd of elephants while playing his favorite role of reporter in the wilderness.

UNPLUG IT. Three young commercial printers, Larry Lobert, left, Yvonne Hoarty and Chris Stoddard, have started a campaign to free television addicts from their consuming habit.

Anti-TV crusade out to unplug U.S.

by DIANE SILVER

Three young commercial printers who came to the unsettling discovery they were television addicts have started a drive to unplug America.

Larry Lobert, 25; Chris Stoddard, 25, and Yvonne Hoarty, 27, spent $1,000 on a magazine advertisement and are conducting a bumper sticker and T-shirt campaign to banish the boob tube.

It started as a joke. Now, it's more like a crusade.

The advertisement, published in Rolling Stone magazine, prompted letters from bleary-eyed viewers troubled about their addiction. Some said the tube was ruining their life — or that of someone near and dear.

The printers formed the nonprofit "Unplug America Coalition" and used the presses at their Ann Arbor, Mich., place of business (Phoenix Printing Co.) for the bumper sticker and T-shirt operation. The group has 1,000 members and is growing daily, Lobert said.

ONE OF THE first to sign up was Dr. Allan Sorscher, 43, a Flint, Mich., physician worried about the effect of TV on his patients. He said the tube contributed to tension illnesses and was a roadblock to communication between family members.

A woman wrote that her sister's husband had turned into a zombie from watching television and she feared their marriage would fail. Other respondents complained of friends who wouldn't turn off the set when they visited.

One may offered to either pull down or blow up any TV antenna the coalition would point out. Lobert said he didn't think the guy was joking.

"We had no idea how serious this was to other people," said Miss Hoarty. "We just couldn't fathom the response we got or the commitment that anti-television people felt."

THE BUMPER stickers and T-shirts carry a militant message.

"Thank You for Not Watching Television," is one slogan. Others say, "Get Mad as Hell and Don't Take It Anymore" and "Watching Television in the Presence of a Non-Viewer May be Considered an Act of Agression."

Lobert said the group is not really interested in reforming or censoring TV. Ardent followers believe their mission is to get people to realize they are being hurt by excessive exposure to the tube, he said.

"I think the role it (TV) plays is one of preventing really effective communication and in that way it contributes to the problems people have in their relationships," Dr. Sorscher said. "I think many of my colleagues across the land are seeing patients who have problems with anxiety, frustration and heightened tension from this."

THE PHYSICIAN said he knew of at least one case in which a married couple spent so much time watching television they stopped talking to each other and eventually divorced.

Miss Hoarty said she and her colleagues became addicted to TV after they started the printing business. She said each night they came home from work exhausted but still spent five hours in front of the set.

"But then it hit me that television was really a placebo creating a lackadaisical attitude that obliterates creative thinking because it doesn't require any response, only receptivity," she said.

Lobert and Stoddard said they got to the point where they could accurately guess the ending of any show they watched.

All three are now confirmed nonwatchers. They still own TV sets but Lobert said they have managed to "control" themselves.

As for Dr. Sorscher, he hasn't owned a set in three years and said he hasn't once missed it.

Clothes make the man — but shoes...

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Gentlemen, look at your shoes. Aren't they disgusting?

If you're like me, you're fed up with the styles of men's footwear today. "Footwear" indeed. Today's shoes aren't fit to throw at a dog, much less put on your feet.

Wait a minute. Maybe they really are inhuman, what with all the stories about illegal aliens from outer space going around. Maybe these foreign intruders are trying to infiltrate our economy by getting a corner of the shoe market. Clearly today's footwear wasn't fashioned by human beings.

THESE MARTIAN cobblers must get their ideas from old Earthling movies. Take that wimpy geek on TV who tap dances for Kinney Shoes. "Come on guys, get into the beat," he chants to a 1930s cadence. I wouldn't buy a used penny loafer from that guy.

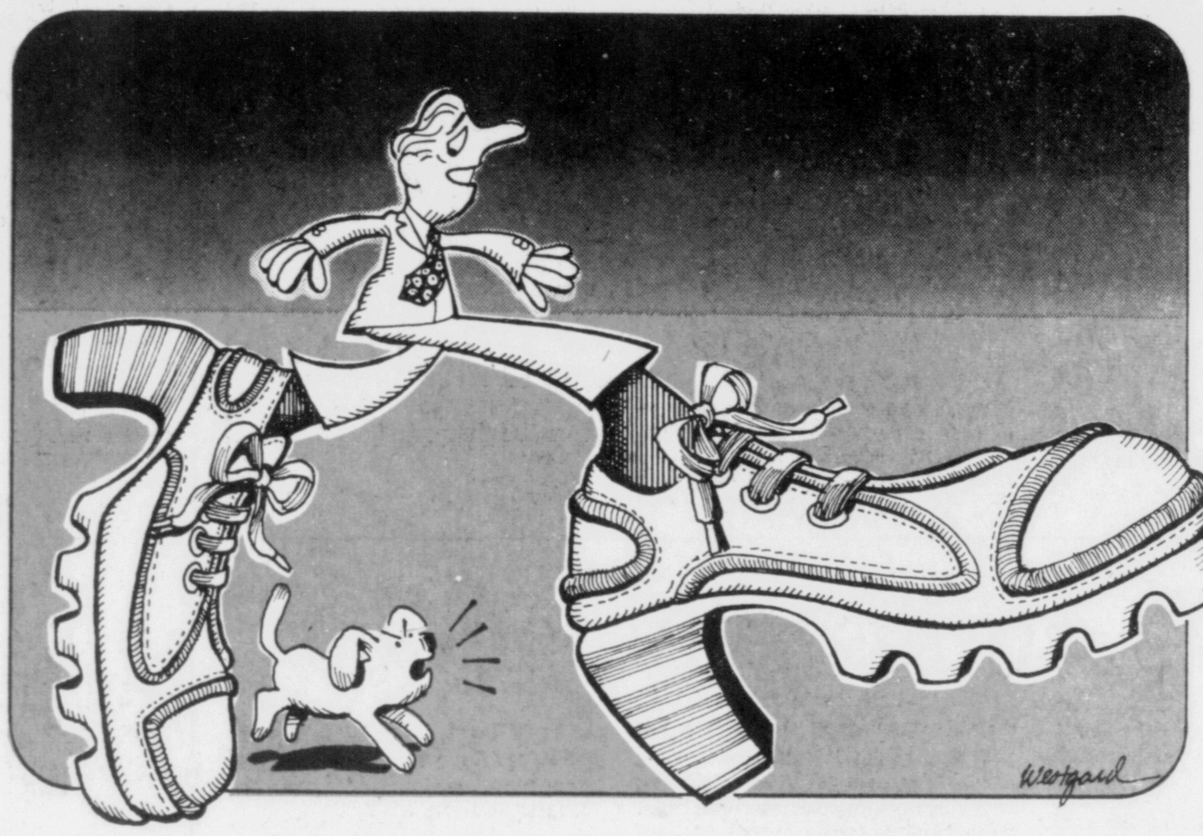
Somewhere on this planet sits a fiend, either foreign or Earth-grown, who takes perverse pleasure in concocting these silly fashions. Let this be a warning: I intend to find him. And when I do, I'm going to take off my boot and beat him senseless.

"Give me some loot, please," I can hear Butch Cassidy say.

"Not so fast, buster. Let's have a look at those shoes. We don't give loans to just any yahoo who walks in off the street."

A promising career is nipped in the bud.

MY BUTCH CASSIDY boots are the only things I've ever bought for my feet that I feel good about. My closet at home has a half dozen shoes in it, all either klunky and bulging, or depressingly conservative. I can't seem to find a middle ground.



It's not my fault. It's the shoe designers'. They've lost touch. They're inhuman. They're . . .

Picture this: a three-piece suit, close-cut shirt, silk tie. Pants tailored to hug the thighs, closely but not too closely, creating a line that slopes gently downward to an elegant burst of material breaking gently over a, uh, a pair of scuffed-up cowboy boots.

I love these boots. They carry memories. I bought them in Telluride, Colo., in a second-hand thrift shop next to a bank Butch Cassidy once robbed, his first.

I wonder what Butch was wearing on his feet at the time. Did he feel self-conscious in a bank? He probably rushed right up to the teller's cage and pressed his chest against the counter so the teller couldn't see his boots, dusty from a hard ride up the gulch.

THEN THERE IS the rash of super-casuals. Rope-rimmed numbers with snowtires for soles, zany tennis shoes and bulbous contraptions with built-up soles that make you feel as if you're walking uphill all the time.

I hate my shoes. I hate buying them, I hate figuring out which of them to strap to my embarrassed feet each morning, and most of all I hate wearing them. It's gotten to the point where I don't even try to have fashionable feet anymore. I just wear what feels good.

Because whether it's at a theater opening, applying for a loan at the bank or simply trying to impress the boss with my sense of good grooming, my feet defeat me.

Slip-ons with tassles and metal ornaments, looking for all the world like they were tailor-made for a jester in the court of King Arthur.

And patent leathers with stilts on the bottom.

And if you can afford it, there are those crumpled leather jobs, so thin you can feel the cracks between the linoleum tiles under your feet.

And wing-tips, by golly, they're still selling wing-tips. Those weird shoes with an extra piece of leather on the toe and tiny little holes punched all over the place, the kind of shoe your father wore to his wedding, and his father before him, and his father. . .

Jogging shoes run well in doctors' tests

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

Go ahead, let your kids run around in jogging shoes all day. The American Olympic team's podiatrist says it's ok.

"If the child has normal feet — if the arches aren't flat or too high — it's perfectly fine to wear jogging shoes because they're built better and better every year," Dr. Steven Subotnick of San Francisco says.

"They have stable heels, many have a bit of an arch, and they're generally made of material that breathes." Which means the feet will breathe, too, and athlete's foot will have to find somewhere else to fester.

Dr. Richard Schuster likes jogging shoes and sneakers, too. He's a New York podiatrist, one time specializing in children's feet, who now treats so many runners, astronauts and Broadway stars that he's had to take on an associate.

"AS A RULE, athletic shoes have nothing but good features," he says. "Solid shanks, flexible soles at the ball and they usually fit very well in the upper."

Then, too, they allow the foot to make complete contact with the ground, so it's not as easy to fall in them as in platform shoes, for example.

Well, the doctors' opinions aside, kids are wearing athletic shoes everywhere, every day, anyway. According to Harold B. Gessner, director of the shoe industry's Footwear Council, "One out of every three shoes sold in this country is a tennis sneaker or athletic shoe."

Far be it from a child to go against trends. But what if his feet really belong elsewhere? How can you tell, since he's not likely to?

FIRST, SAYS Dr. Schuster, "Kids are always taking their shoes off, but if one shows a particular desire to do so, that may mean trouble.

"Look for any sign of a limp and check the nails for discoloration." Runners, he says, are always losing a nail here and there because when they stop short, the foot keeps going into the shoe. With a child who doesn't run that much, it could mean a shoe that's too short.

"Unusual redness indicates unusual pressure of the shoe, too," he says, and if any or all of these things clearly present themselves, present the child to a doctor for professional attention.

If you choose the shoes correctly to begin with, however — again assuming the child's feet are normal — you may not have to foot that doctor's bill.

"YOU JUDGE AN athletic shoe the same way as any shoe,"

Designer knee-deep in men's socks

by CHARLES HIX

Why is that visible peekaboo of pallid skin between a man's hose and trouser cuffs so heart-sinking to all observers when a fellow crosses his legs? Is this the ultimate exposure of masculine vulnerability?

Whatever the reason, fashion experts concur that an errantly flashed shin automatically banishes any fellow to the 'worst dressed' list. In keeping with this, the most pedestrian crime of the times is wearing drooping socks.

"We've passed through the 'white sock syndrome'," reports Wayne Duggins, chief stylist for Burlington Socks-Adler, the world's largest maker of men's hose. "That was simple laziness: A guy bought six pairs of white not to puzzle if brown went with blue. He felt that he couldn't make a mistake with white. But now that men are generally more fashion-conscious, the white-only sock-wearer is a dying breed. Today you see white in athletic socks and that's about it."

BUT A MID-ANKLE scrutiny of the man on the street still will reveal lots of bagging socks, a phenomenon that annoys even unfashionable fellows. In fact, according to independent research commissioned by Burlington-Adler, a whopping 85 per cent of the men interviewed complained about their hosiery lacking staying-up power. They also groused about elastic in tops breaking, heels wearing out too quickly and getting holes in the toes. Coloring and styling bickers, however, were statistically insignificant.

Admitting that he has forsaken any burning desires to create eye-dazzling paisley socks, Duggins concedes, "In styling a sock line, you must divorce your personality from what you're doing. I toyed with the idea of cashmere socks for this fall, but they were far too expensive. I must be mindful of the limitations of knitting machinery and can't forget practical criteria. Such as: How to keep socks from getting smelly." (Burlington-Adler has a patented Bioguard process to this end.)

For this fall, the dapper sock designer evaluated more than 50 new men's sock styles knitted to his specifications. But following a high mortality rate, only 10 of them were added to the company's line. Yet, all of the surviving styles from seasons past were recolored this fall. Considering that some 76 shades (including white) are found in the famous Gold Cup crew socks alone, Duggins' task was far from simple.

"We dropped a few nylon dress socks," he relates, "replacing them with natural blends, because that's the way the men's sock market is currently heading. Socks are becoming more casual, but a man in a business suit is never properly dressed in anklets."

Noting that what one man wears as dress socks another male might relegate to casual wear only, Duggins tries to make distinctions without being dogmatic: "Technically, an anklet is about 11 inches from the gore of the heel to the top of the sock, so it certainly doesn't cease at the ankle. Mid-length hosiery is 12.5 inches; over-the-calf, 18 inches. But, remember, athletic socks come in all lenghts. Dress socks are always light in weight. A fine black nylon anklet, though short, is still considered a dress sock, while to-the-knee tube socks are generally for sports.

"I CATEGORIZE MEN'S hosiery three ways — dress, casual and sport-athletic socks — but some so-called casuals might be 'either-or' types, distinguished by the look and not only the length," continues the prematurely gray, 35-ish executive in his soft Southern drawl. "Argyles, for example, can be worn with jeans, chinos, slacks or vested suits. Personally, I think you should never see a man's shin — unless he's wearing walking shorts — even if he's in dungarees."

Noting that, as a sock designer, he follows rather than leads fashion, Duggins offers the same list of trends in men's hosiery that most men's clothing manufacturers cite:

- The British look
- The Classic Look
- The Ivy ('50s) Influence
- The Lure of the Outdoors
- Anti-Freeze Fashion
- The Sporting Life

"Three years ago, men were wearing harsh, garish sock patterns," Duggins says. "Now, the looks are much easier on the eye. The British resurgence is reflected in cabled socks and heathers. For the country, nail's head patterns are informally elegant. Argyles can be British, country or Ivy. Bulky, marled socks are 'anti-freeze' protection but they also represent a whole new fashion look to be worn with lumberjack outfits, Shetland sweaters or even country tweeds. Ultimately, fashion is not what but how — how the total look is put together, with socks as one element."

So, if fashion is indeed a head-to-toe matter, then Wayne Duggins, though among the least known of designers, may be influencing more men (millions of whom unwittingly wear his designs) than Coty Award winners (who are almost never worn by the millions).

SHOES FOR THE youngest athletes are miniaturized versions of what adults are wearing; serious attention is given to construction and styling. From bottom left, clockwise: A.A.U. Schuster sayd. "There's got to be some space beyond the end of the toe, so press down and feel for the sole. See that there's no interference with the end of the largest toe.

"And you should be able to pinch the material across the top of the ball of the foot."

You may have a problem at the heel, though because as a rule these shoes only come in one, two or three widths.

"Still, that's not too bad," he says. "A shoe doesn't provide ankle support as many people think." A child might get blisters if he's going to run around in shoes that are too kjjjloose in the back, in which case you should look for a combination last, or take some of the space with a thick sock."

HOW MUCH should you spend? Schuster and Subotnick disagree. "In the final analysis, one shoe is not any better than its fit, no matter the price," Schuster says.

But Subotnick says, "Price does make a difference. You will have to spend between $18 and $27 for a good shoe, and you should look for a firm heel counter, flexibility at the ball and a flared heel which gives more stability."

Finally, if the shoe meets all the criteria but the child is bothered by a prominent bump across his instep, Schuster says that's easy enough to overcome. "Skip that eyelet when you tie the shoe," he says.

Happy hoofers choose his shoes

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

Oh, the shame of it! To think that . . .no, we refuse to harbor the thought.

Ruby Keeler, Eleanor Powell, Ann Miller — surely none of them would be caught in jingle taps.

"We consider ourselves the leading manufacturer of dance and gymnastic shoes," said Stanley R. Winn, president of Selva Shoes. He's got 175 persons working for him, making 60 different styles of dance shoes alone (ballet, tap, folk, jazz, etc.) for men, women and children.

That's how we found out about jingle taps. Winn was showing us two styles of women's tap shoes he makes, and explaining just what constitutes a tap shoe, anyway.

"They're very soft, unlike a walking shoe," he said. "They do have a short steel shank and a very soft toe-box — the strip in front that reinforces the toe area."

ON THE TOP EDGE of the shoe, there's French cord binding to make it hug the foot, he went on. Inside you've got a cushiony lining, and underneath there's an oak (extremely hard) leather sole and heel which, again, increase resonance.

At this point, Winn opened some boxes of metal taps which are sold separately in women's and men's shoes, $1.50 to $3.00 each for heels and toes.

And then he produced the double or jingle tap. "Here you have two pieces of metal loosely attached to each other. When this tap is used, that's the noise you hear, one metal hitting the other. It sounds," he confessed, "like you're tapping twice as much."

IF THAT KIND of fraud appeals to you, or if you're just keen on showing Ginger Rogers what flashy footwork really is, be sure your shoes are tight. "The ideal tap shoe should fit very comfortably with the toes as close as possible to the inside edge, to give you control over the tap," Winn said.

In square dance shoes, forget about your toes and concentrate on comfort alone as you do with walking shoes, which they resemble.

One more thing about ladies' square dance shoes, and that's the sole. It's made of soft leather suede; not totally smooth so there is some traction, but that's not the main concern.

Lastly, as far as the individual merits of tap and square dancing go, you have to say one thing about the latter. You can either execute the calls or you can't. There are no such things as jingle taps to create the illusion of pedi-gymnastics.

Oh, the shame of it!

Pleated pants set for comeback

Harry Juster

Look smart

FASHION NOTES — Along with the strong swing to vested suits and the country look this season, pleated pants also are starting to make an appearance.

Both single and double pleats are being shown. Palm Beach likes the latter for one of its country suits tailored of Stevens Donegal tweed. The easy-fitting jacket sports a throat latch, hacking pockets and leather buttons. The vest also features similar buttons. A plaid shirt and solid-color knit tie are in complete harmony with the casual air of the outfit.

Whether once popular pleats will again take hold is anybody's guess. Mine is that there's a good chance this style treatment will gain in popularity.

Dear Mr. Juster: Our son is a high school junior and needs one fairly dressy outfit. His preference seems to be a blue blazer with gray slacks. His father leans to this, too, but I would like to see him get a dark-brown corduroy suit, especially with a fancy vest. Which do you recommend? — Mrs. R. G.

Either one is good, but the blazer outfit gets my vote. It has a smart look and can be used for practically any occasion. corduroy is more on the casual side.

Dear Mr. Juster: For years I've been wearing white shirts and my wife has been satisfied with the way they look until you wrote something about stripes. Now she is after me to get some because you recommend them. Buying shirts has been so easy — no worry about colors or patterns. Why complicate things? — F. D. N.

That's the last thing I want to do. There is really nothing too complicated about picking striped shirts and they do vary the look of the outfit. If you let me know your suit shades and patterns, I'll be happy to send suggestions on colors and type of stripings to select.

Dear Mr. Juster: As a salesman, appearance is important to me. Lately I find I'm carrying so many necessities that my suits bulge badly. These include a coin purse, folding scissors, comb, nail file, money clip, key case, wallet, handkerchief, address book, note pad, pen, pencil and glasses case. How should I lick this problem? — T. J. B.

You're either going to need a tote bag or unload some of those "necessities." For instance, the knife, nail cleaner, scissors and the keys are seldom used. Also, small change can be kept loosely, so there's no need for a coin purse. This should help reduce the bulges.

CLOTHES-ING NOTE — Recently, I ran across a slogan on posture: "Stand Tall — Sit Tall — Walk Tall — Sleep Tall." How the last one is accomplished is puzzling, but making a practice of the other three unquestionably will improve the posture. And that, of course, helps you and your clothes look better.

COOPERATIVE BLOOD REPLACEMENT PLAN 477-7500

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Soft water influences high blood pressure

I have been told I have high blood pressure. I am taking a mild medication. I exercise, am about eight to 10 pounds overweight, anl seem to have no particular stress in my life.

I'm 58, and my blood pressure has been 170 over 100. Some have mentioned that it might be caused by drinking nothing but commercially softened water at home. Could the salt in this contribute enough salt to my system to be a problem.

Your blood pressure is not alarming, but statistics do show that low normal readings are associated with a lower incidence of heart attacks, strokes and other problems associated with disease of the arteries. It will help you if you can regulate your life to have a more normal reading.

The first order of business is to get rid of every pound of fat you can. Keep your exercise program going, and cut down on your salt.

There are differences in water softeners, but some do increase the salt (sodium) content in the water. In addition, some scientists studying heart disease have claimed that soft water in the pipes dissolves out heavy metals that are toxic to the kidneys and may lead to high blood pressure.

If you want soft water for drinking purposes, why don't you just get bottled distilled water. I would suspect the mild medicines you are receiving help eliminate salt from your body.

My husband is in his late 40s. He is a big eater, but does heavy physical labor, so usually uses up the energy from his big meal.

He eats no breakfast, has a light lunch, and a big dinner. He doesn't have much indigestion except during the night — two nights in a row this week, he got up quickly to vomit, and had a lot of acidity. He says he's not sick.

About a year ago, he had bleeding from his bowels, it stopped but came back once. What do you think causes the vomiting?

Anyone who has unexplained vomiting must have a medical examination. There is no other way to find out the cause and it can be a symptom of an important illness. He could have a hiatal hernia with food regurgitating back into his lower esophagus after that heavy evening meal.

He could have an ulcer or an obstruction of the outlet of the stomach. He could even have a malignancy. I hate to alarm you, but you simply cannot ignore that kind of history. While waiting to see the doctor, I think you should change his eating habits and eat a normal breakfast a reasonable lunch, and a very light evening meal at least three hours before he goes to bed. He should stop coffee, cigarettes and alcohol if he uses these but he simply must see a doctor.

I might add for other readers that unexplained bleeding from the bowels is often hemorrhoids, but it can also be cancer and should never be neglected.

Indoor herb garden grows fresh spices

Dear Roberta: Soon the frost will kill the herbs in our garden, and would like to know how to dry or preserve them for use during the winter.—Ann Stewart Anderson

With careful potting, you ought to be able to keep at least some of your herbs growing inside the house. If you've a sunny spot for them, an herb garden — with its variously textured leaves — is attractive as well as useful. Use the freezer for storing the herbs you can't plant. Just wash the young leaves well, pat dry and pack in small plastic bags. All herbs freeze well and can be easily snipped with scissors, or chopped, while still frozen.

Dear Roberta: The resilient floor covering in the kitchen of the home we've moved into has a buildup of discolored wax. Do I have to buy a commercial stripper or will some common household product remove it?—Ruthe Pollock

Make your own wax remover by mixing one-half cup of detergent and one and one-half cups of ammonia to a gallon of water. Apply to a small area of the floor and leave on for five minutes. If the wax doesn't soften and become cloudy, add more detergent and ammonia. When you find the proper strength, spread the solution generously on the floor. In five minutes, scrub the floor with a stiff brush, fine steel wool or an electric floor scrubber. Then take up the solution with a sponge mop, and rinse.

Energy Savers: Put the second load of clothes into the dryer right after the first one finishes. The dryer won't have to use as much energy heating up as it would from a cold start.

Woman rises in management by . . .

Taking shine to polishing planes

by RONNIE SCHEIER

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sometimes you literally have to climb to the top to succeed in the working world.

That's what Mimi Banks found when she got bored with her job as an office clerk for American Airlines at O'Hare Airport. So Mrs. Banks jumped at an opening for an airplane polisher.

Despite the skepticism of the 26 men in the crew, she climbed a scaffold two or three stories high each night to buff and polish huge jetliners.

NINE MONTHS later Mrs. Banks was back in the office, this time as boss of her former fellow workers who doubted a 5-foot-1 mother of two could climb over airplanes and make them shine. She is the first woman named by American to supervise the exterior cleaning of aircraft.

"I'd been working in the office for four years and I got tired of doing office work," explained the diminutive 27-year-old blonde, over the din of her and 4-year-old sons playing in the background.

"You get to the point where all you're talking about is what you're gonna have for lunch, you know, and everybody is gossiping.

"It's hard to progress in a company. You get yourself in a rut.

"THEN THE JOB opened up and it was more money so I decided to do it. The week before I was supposed to start I went to check it out. It looked hard, but I did a lot of swimming and gymnastics (in school), so I'm not a weakling."

Mrs. Banks maintains her home in Des Plaines and cares for her children during the day, snatches a few hours sleep in late afternoon, then welcomes her salesman husband, Don, home and goes off to work from 10:30 p.m. to 6:30 a.m.

"I don't think (my husband) thought I would make it," she said. "He thought there was no way I could do it and give the attention to the kids and keep the house up. But it hasn't worked out that way. For some reason, working at night I don't seem to need as much sleep."

Last month, Mrs. Banks became supervisor of 60 men.

The 707 and 727 jets are polished approximately every four months to remove layers of grease and grime, she said. It takes 18 to 22 workers four to five hours to polish each craft. The crew goes through 1,000 polishing mits and 20 gallons of polish per week.

"A lot of the men have been there several years and are . . . I guess you could say a little old-fashioned," she said. "They were kind of slowing up for me just to give me a hard time.

"But I think any supervisor has to expect that. There's always some people who aren't going to like you no matter who you are. And the management has made it clear that they are behind me 100 per cent."

It was a gamble, and it worked.

"It makes me realize," Mrs. Banks mused, "that anybody can do anything that they want to do if they really put their mind to it. It doesn't matter if you're a man or woman, tall or short, if you really want to do something you can do it."

Spring, summer wedding bells ring

Homeyer-Wiegard

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Homeyer, Barrington, announce the engagement of their daughter Judy to Robert Wiegard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wiegard, Mount Prospect. The couple will marry next June.

A graduate of Prospect High School, April works for State Farm Insurance, Mount Prospect. Her fiance graduated from Rolling Meadows High School. He is employed by Weyerhauser in Des Plaines.

Janet Glaser–Michael Fisher

Now residing in Palatine are a young cuple who met each other when they were students at Prospect High School. Janet Glaser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Glaser, Arlington Heights, became the bride of Michael Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher, Mount Prospect, at St. Raymond Church, Mount Prospect, on Oct. 15.

The 4 p.m. double ring ceremony took place by candlelight. Janet was attired in a white silk organza gown with Venise lace trim, complemented by a cathedral-length veil, also trimmed in Venise lace. Her cascade consisted of white orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath, apricot abbey roses and ivy.

Clad in an emerald green gown with sheer shoulder overlay, and a matching picture hat, Sue Pierce, Arlington Heights, performed her duties as maid of honor. In matching outfits were the bridesmaids: Nancy Moran and Katie Bowden, Mount Prospect; the bride's sisters Patti Glaser and Barbara Benson, Arlington Heights; and the groom's sister, Patti.

EACH GIRL CARRIED a bouquet of white and bittersweet mums, yellow and apricot abbey roses, baby's breath and ivy.

Norm Smith, Palatine, was best man, with Al Weber of New Jersey; Jim Hammon, Macomb; Clyde Peterson, Palatine; Bob Hills, Mount Prospect; and the groom's brother, Bucky serving as groomsmen. Another brother, Bob, and the bride's brother, Ron Jr. were the ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fisher

A dinner-dance at Allgauer's Fireside, Northbrook, followed the wedding, with 210 guests attending. For their honeymoon, the newlyweds spent two weeks in Pompano Beach, Fla.

Janet, a 1974 high school graduate, attended Western Illinois University, and now works for City Products Corporation, Des Plaines. Michael graduated a year earlier and attended the University of Wisconsin in Oshkosh. He is employed by Tempo 21, Inc., Wheeling.

Major tax increases to threaten plans for economic recovery

by DAVID R. FRANCIS

American taxpayers face one of the largest peacetime tax increases in history.

Unless offset by major tax cuts, the increased levies could harm the economic recovery.

• If the House bill survives conference, social security taxes on employes and employers combined will climb an estimated $208 billion during the next 10 years.

• The energy bill also could boost taxes enormously. Sen. William J. Roth Jr., R-Delaware, maintains President Carter's proposed crude oil tax would mean an extra $91 billion in federal revenues through 1985. The House bill would return such revenues to taxpayers through rebates.

• A tax reform bill could soak the well-to-do through closing loopholes. However, such a bill usually means tax cuts that exceed the tax revenues won by narrowing tax preferences.

President Carter has announced that the administration will postpone offering its tax reform proposals to Congress until next year.

• A more insidious tax increase results from inflation. It shoves taxpayers into higher income tax brackets even if they have no increase in their real incomes (after the impact of inflation has been removed).

PRESIDENT CARTER has recognized the danger that the social security tax increase could be both inflationary and have "a dampening effect on the economy."

But so far the administration has indicated it has no plans to offset the impact of inflation on tax rates. Such a hidden tax enables the federal government to boost its revenues without having to pass legislation increasing taxes. Indeed, periodically Congress can have the political fun of supposedly "cutting" taxes when it really is only dropping them back to previous levels.

The Canadian government denied itself the political ease of inflation-induced tax increases in 1974. It introduced a system of "indexing," or "inflation-proofing," the federal income tax. Personal exemptions and tax brackets are enlarged by a factor pegged to the consumer price index. This once more will ease the tax burden for Canadians next year.

INDEXING, IF adapted in the United States would remove this one disadvantage of inflation for taxpayers. But it would not remove all the inequities created by inflation.

For instance, a 5 per cent annual inflation rate cuts the purchasing power of a fixed pension benefit by more than 50 per cent in 15 years. Social Security payments have been raised by Congress to more than offset inflation. But private pension plans only rarely are inflation-proofed.

Inflation is one of the reasons the social security funds are in trouble. Many of the billions of dollars of government securities held by these funds pay only a low interest rate. They were amassed at a time when interest rates were set on the basis of a much lower inflation rate.

SIMILARLY, inflation has robbed the holders of some $421 billion in federal government debt of some of the value of their bonds, notes or bills. The beneficiary of inflation in this case has been the government. It pays back whatever it borrows in cheaper dollars.

Carter tax plan delay reassuring

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — As they used to say about the weather: if you don't like President Carter's tax program, just wait a few minutes. It's bound to change again and you might be happily surprised.

That's part of the message in the announcement that the President's long-awaited "tax reform" proposals now will be further delayed, until late this year or early next, and that the administration is reassessing every element in the package.

The other part of the message is that this is a President who, despite an unfortunate tendency to present half-baked economic proposals as if they were epicurean souffles, is at least capable, when the souffles visibly sag, of profiting from his on-the-job training as a chef.

IF CARTER WERE as totally stubborn as he is sometimes depicted, he would be insisting Congress consume his ill-prepared capital gains "reform," for example, on the grounds he had been elected to choose the nation's fiscal and moral diet.

His withdrawal of this offering is wholly in line with two earlier evidences of Carter's ability to rethink his own economic rhetoric:

• Carter the campaigner said he wanted to keep standby wage and price controls in the closet. Carter the President-elect saw this policy would be counterproductive, in terms of truly controlling inflation, so he abandoned it.

• Carter the new President called for what looked at the time suspiciously like a "$50 a vote" tax rebate. Carter the not-so-new President saw the notion was unwise, unnecessary and inflationary, so he abandoned it.

Already this year we had been presented with three different Carter tax programs on the single issue of capital investment: Carter No. 1 said he would end the double taxation of dividends. Corporations now pay dividends out of their after-tax profits and stockholders then have to pay a second tax when they get the dividends. That would help expand investment and eventually jobs.

But Carter No. 2, trapped in his "populist" oratory of 1976, said he would end all special tax treatment for capital gains. That would just as surely hurt. And Carter No. 3 said we wouldn't know what actually wasiin his package until he announced it. That was, in some ways, the most hopeful Carter of all and it turned out to be the one worth listening to.

Now we have Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal assuring us that the newly scheduled White House Tax review will "look at the whole package," specifically including the assault on capital gains. And another administration "expert" is quoted as confessing in bewilderment: "I don't know where we'll come out. I don't think even the President knows."

So the President has taken a step backward on tax revision, and while it adds in a way to the pervasive uncertainty about him, it is also in a more significant way reassuring. Moralists make dangerous economists, but a tactician we can handle.

Business briefs

'Lemons' common car complaint

The chairman of the Federal Trade Commission said Monday the most frequently received complaints from consumers around the country deal with automobiles that consumers believe are "lemons." "Unfortunately that's a complaint that as of yet we can't deal with because the laws are not strong enough for us to reach the lemon," Michael Pertschuk said in an interview after addressing a meeting of the Better Business Bureau of eastern Massachusetts. Pertschuk also said "there is a rising concern about the kinds of advertising that are directed towards children — especially advertising food products which may pose health hazards."

Public interest group raps ERA

The Environmental Protection Agency should get away from its "chemical of the week syndrome" and develop a comprehensive policy to eliminate cancer hazards, says the Environmental Defense Fund. "For too long the public has been forced to stand by helplessly as one chemical after another was indicted as being potentially carcinogenic," said the public interest group. "Each time a new chemical hazard is identified, the same questions must be answered all over again," the EDF said. The questions deal with whether animal tests are sufficient to justify regulating a substance, how much evidence is needed and what section of the Clean Air Act applies.

OPEC discussing oil price hike

Economic experts of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met Monday to discuss the next oil price increase amid a report it would ignore President Carter's appeal for a freeze and raise prices at least 5 per cent. An OPEC spokesman said some 40 experts from the 13 member nations are reviewing all aspects of the world economy affecting the oil exporting countries, including inflation, the cost of imports and the decline in value of the U. S. dollar. The meeting behind closed doors was expected to last about one week.

Profit margins reach '76 level

Corporate profits margins are not large enough this year to foster a surge in capital spending, a conference board analysis said Monday. Second-quarter profits advanced 7.5 per cent from the first-quarter performance, but recent gains came on the heels of a decline in profitability in late 1976 and "simply brought profit margins back to year-ago levels," the private research organization said.

Loss for Milwaukee Rwy. parent

Chicago Milwaukee Corp., parent of the Milwaukee Railroad, had a loss of $3.71 million in the third quarter and a nine-month operating loss of $3.8 million. However, a $28.06 million accounting change produced bookkeeping net income of $25.54 million, or $9.69 a share, against a loss of $8.8 million a year ago. The 1976 third quarter loss was $6.72 million.

Carter peanut warehouse for sale

President Carter's peanut warehouse in Plains has been put up for sale. Charles H. Kirbo, an Atlanta attorney who handles Carter's financial affairs, confirmed the warehouse was on the market but that Gold Kist Inc., the farmers cooperative, had a right to top any offer received before Aug. 1, 1978.

Travel agent classes scheduled

The Midwest chapter of the American Society of Travel Agents has scheduled training courses for persons interested in training for the travel agency field. The beginner level course meets at O'Hare Airport on Wednesdays, starting Nov. 16. The first session assembles at TWA training area on the mezzanine at 5:45 p.m. More advanced training, with college credit, is offered at the YMCA College, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, beginning Tuesday, Nov. 15. Prerequisite is either the beginner course or work experience with travel agency or airline. Tuition and materials charges for either eight week course are $135. Applications are available from Midwest ASTA Education Committee, 6 E. Monroe, Chicago. Deadline for registration is Wednesday, Nov. 10.

British firm buys toy company

Nabisco Inc. announced Monday it has reached tentative agreement to sell the worldwide toy and model motoring businesses of its Aurora Products Corp. to Dundee-Combex-Marx Ltd. ,a British toy company. Terms were not disclosed.

Telling named chairman of Sears

Edward R. Telling Monday was elected chairman and chief executive officer of Sears Roebuck and Co., world's largest retailer.

Telling will succeed Arthur M. Wood, who retires Jan. 31, 1978, under the company's mandatory retirement policy. Telling will assume office Feb. 1.

Telling, 58, a native of Danville, Ill., was promoted from his post as senior executive vice president.

Edward R. Telling

Telling joined Sears in 1946 as a trainee in Danville upon graduation from Illinois Wesleyan University. In 1948 he was named assistant manager of the Sears store in Decatur, Ill., and later became manager of the Danville store.

TELLING LATER managed a new store in Rockford, and subsequently was named Sears' Midwestern manager, general manager of Sears retail stores in metropolitan New York in 1965 and in 1969 was elected a company director.

He was elected senior executive vice president in February 1976.

Telling also is a director of Sears-owned Allstate Insurance Co. and Homart Development Co. and a director of the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Succeeding Telling as senior executive vice president will be Charles C. Wurmstedt, executive vice president, Midwest.

Wood will continue as a member of the board of directors and will become chairman of the board of trustees of the savings and profit sharing fund of Sears employes in May 1978.

A. Dean Swift remains as president and chief administrative officer.

Dow scores another gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average scored its third straight gain Monday, helped by bargain hunters encouraged by indications the Federal Reserve Board had relaxed its credit policies. Trading was moderate.

The Dow average, which gained 7.27 points Friday, climbed another 6.50 points to 816.44. In the past three sessions, it has gained 15.59 points. The closely watched average lost 12.74 points over-all last week.

Monday's rally was a carryover from Friday's surge that was sparked by revelations that, contrary to earlier belief, the Fed had not tightened credit. The board actually took emergency technical steps to correct an imbalance caused by a delay in delivery of some checks.

THE NEW YORK Stock Exchange common stock index rose 0.40 to 50.67 and the average price of a share jumped 24 cents.

Advances routed declines, 1,054 to 368, among the 1,840 issues crossing the composite tape at 3 p.m. CST.

Big Board volume totaled 20,270,000 shares, down from the 21,700,000 traded Friday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 3 p.m. CST totaled 22,875,668 shares, compared with 23,352,180 Friday.

Prices were higher in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter issues.

Heart attacks are now Chicagoland's number one killer. For valuable information on preventing heart attacks, write HEART, care of your local postmaster. Stop the heart stopper

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Find out more about a whole new generation in copiers, call or write us today.

For $2,975,* it's the biggest bargain in plain paper copier history.

Retail Management

THERE IS A BIG FUTURE IN RETAILING

Retail Management is today's kind of career. Exciting, diversified, it offers unlimited opportunities to move up in the right direction — straight to the top!

1) COMPLETE MANAGEMENT TRAINING
To begin with, our management training programs are designed to give you a professional knowledge of retail management: buying, selling, advertising, public relations, personnel supervision, research and finance. You'll become a total business executive.

2) OPPORTUNITIES FOR ADVANCEMENT
You receive promotions and salary increases as you demonstrate your capabilities. When you complete your management training, you become a manager, a profit sharing (partner) in the company.

3) STABILITY & PROGRESS
Ours is a growth company with stores in 50 states, ranking among the top one hundred U.S. corporations in sales. Your future growth is assured with our company.

4) COMPANY BENEFITS
These include a stock purchase plan, company sponsored group life and extended medical insurance, paid vacations, a retirement pension plan fully paid by the company.
If the challenge of a retailing career interests you contact: C-28, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Il. 60006

Parade marks Soviets' 60th year

MOSCOW (UPI) — Thousands of crack troops and hundreds of military vehicles paraded over the cobblestones of Red Square Monday in a giant display of military might marking the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Highlighting the three-hour spectacle as it wound its way under a huge portrait of V. I. Lenin was the first public appearance of a new, laser-equipped battle tank.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and other members of the Politburo reviewed the troops from their traditional post atop Lenin's marble mausoleum. Thousands of specially selected viewers watched the parade from the sides of Red Square.

THE PARADE began promptly at 10 a.m., with Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Dmitry Ustinov riding into Red Square in a gray ZIL convertible. He and General of the Army Vladimir Govorov reviewed the troops before the march began.

The military display was twice as big as in the past two years and Ustinov, in a brief address, declared that the Soviet Union intended to keep its defense capability high.

"Our party and state lead the struggle for peace, detente and disarmament," he said, "but at the same time we take all measures required to further strengthen our armed capabilities.

"Our defense potential is maintained on such a high level that no one will risk violating our peaceful lives," he said.

BREZHNEV LATER toasted "to lasting peace on earth" at a Kremlin reception. "We will do everything in our power for easing the threat of war, for strengthening peaceful cooperation among states," the Soviet leader pledged.

Hundreds of units of Moscow's crack military garrison, along with two giant army bands, uniformed secret police, a contingent of paratroopers carrying machine guns and units of the Soviet navy in dark blue wool uniforms goose-stepped past the tomb.

No sooner had the echoes of their boots on the cobblestone surface died away than another command was shouted and the tremendous roar of machinery erupted from the end of the square opposite the magnificent domes of St. Basil's cathedral.

Some 130 antitank weapons, amphibious armored personnel carriers and small airborne tanks rumbled through the square in a cloud of blue exhaust fumes before the crowd got a look at the most important vehicle in the parade — a new tank, the T-72.

THE T-72s ROLLED into Red Square with their commanders standing poker-stiff in the turrets and their drivers' heads popping out of portholes just to the left of the huge cannon.

The machines are important because they carry a new automatically loaded gun and elaborate laser rangefinder system. They also have a smaller crew — three men compared to the four-man crew of the predecessor, the T-62.

There were 46 of the T-72 tanks in the parade, and they executed their pass in review flawlessly, reflecting midnight practice sessions that prepared the troops and vehicles for the massive parade.

The new tanks were followed by 164 other units including various surface-to-air and surface-to-surace missiles, and 12 self-propelled howitzers, the first entries for the Soviet Union in to the self-propelled gun field.

The 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, which according to the old Russian calendar took place in October, led to the founding of the modern Soviet state.

Weapons display leads festivities

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Some one million Leningraders, spearheaded by a display of Soviet missiles and rockets, celebrated the Soviet Union's 60th anniversary Monday by marching in pouring rain through the main square of the city that gave birth to the Bolshevik revolution in 1917.

Foreign observers said it was the first time in three years that sophisticated weaponry had been exhibited in the traditional Nov. 7 parade in Leningrad.

The entire parade through Winter Palace Square took 3½ hours, with announcers shouting slogans over loudspeakers and marchers responding with cheers. Waving unceasingly to the marchers was Gregory Romanov, a member of the ruling Soviet Politburo and First Communist Party Secretary of the Leningrad region.

THE MILITARY PART was brief, taking about 10 minutes. First came thousands of goosestepping troops who take part every year. Then came 21 armored personnel carriers with combat troops, 40 jeeps with paratroopers and 17 heavy trucks towing cannons.

Following that were six trucks with multiple rocket launchers, six with short-range rockets in pods and 10 trucks with surface to air (SAM) missiles pointing skyward at an angle.

Last, but most impressive, were six low-slung, eight-wheel giant trucks, each carrying one surface-to-surface short-range missile.

After the military display, the parade of workers and others began. During a slight pause in the otherwise well-rehearsed parade, a stray dog ran the whole route past the reviewing stand, drawing chuckles from the crowd.

ANNOUNCERS SHOUTED: "Glory to the revolution!" "Glory to communism!" "Long live Marxism-Leninism!" and "Glory to the Soviet woman!"

Each shout was followed by a "hurrah" from the announcer, echoed in turn by the umbrella-covered crowd as it marched past the reviewing stand eight cordons deep.

The marchers walked among tractors, trucks and other heavy machinery, many carrying rain-soaked signs and banners proclaiming the glories of communism and Soviet progress during its 60 years of rule.

The teams of announcers constantly reminded the people how good they have it under communism and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's name was mentioned almost as often as that of Lenin.

Bears aren't waiting till next year

Bear coach Jack Pardee already had been forced through a rehash of Sunday's 47-0 loss to the Oilers when he stepped out of the team's Monday morning press conference to find a parking ticket on his jeep.

The meter maid must have been a Bear fan.

When you're down, you're down. The Bears are down and just about out. What began as a race to the Super Bowl has become a race to get the season over with, though some have not accepted it yet.

"I CAN'T BELIEVE that," said quarterback Bob Avellini, who bristled at a reporter's suggestion that the Bears are out of playoff contention. "We've got to go out and win our division. Who's to say we can't do it with five losses? But we've got to stop the peaks and valleys."

Avellini is right, there have been too many ups and downs. Even in victory, the Bears have had trouble, like getting down to Los Angeles 16-0 before coming back to win.

The peaks and valleys are not going to go away this year. Too many things have gone wrong. Key players have been hurt and there is nothing that can be done this season.

"It appears to me that we have to play ourselves every week," said general manager Jim Finks, who has been frustrated in his attempts to find help in the middle of the season. "This club is fighting itself as much as the opposition."

Finks admitted Monday the Bears were more consistent last year, though they were losing. He cited injuries to tackle Lionel Antoine, defensive end Wally Chambers and defensive tackle Roger Stillwell. All were starters, key starters, but have been shelved for the season.

"VERY FEW CLUBS can afford losing a linebacker who led the league in interceptions last year (Ross Brupbacher, who retired), a tackle who would just be coming into his prime, a defensive end who should also be in his prime, and not feel some dropoff," Finks said.

But the Bear problems are not as tangible as that. The problems are much deeper and almost impossible to pinpoint.

Bob Gallas

Byline report

You could call it attitude, maturity, mental preparedness. Sometimes the Bears are mentally ready to play, like against Green Bay, which was preceded by what all involved termed a "good week of practice." Then came Houston, which followed a bad week of practice.

"It's a little like a high school senior going away to college for the first time," said Pardee. "You are not going to be around to remind them, they have to develop their own study habits. The players have to learn to get themselves up for a game."

Perhaps the real problem came from Bear critics, rather the lack of critics when camp opened this summer. There was a euphoria in the Bear camp that mellowed as time went on, but never really went away. Fans expected big things.

"I FELT THAT the great enthusiasm last spring and summer was wonderful, but people expected too much," Finks said. "It started with the Vikings' loss in the Super Bowl. Everybody said the Vikings were on their way down and the Bears were 7-7 with a tough schedule and were coming on."

But now they can only look ahead to next year, though they still are in the race for the National Football Conference Central Division title. The Vikings have three losses and still must play Cincinnati and at Oakland and Detroit, where the Lions are near unbeatable. Last Sunday at home, the Lions topped the formidable San Diego Chargers.

But the Bears have five losses and still face a date on the road in Detroit and a rematch with Minnesota. There are also games with Kansas City and with the Giants in New York. Both of those teams are capable of beating the Bears.

It's just possible that the Bears could win five of their last six, which would give them an 8-6 record. But it's just as possible the Bears will lose three or four more, which would mean a 6-8 or 5-9 campaign.

THE FLICKER of hope still burns because the possibility exists that the Bears could win all six of their remaining games. But how many Super Bowl teams have started out by losing five of their first eight games?

Finks obvously can't say much in the middle of the season but he did indicate there would be some changes made.

"There's no point in talking about a situation you can't do anything about right now," said Finks, who admitted he went looking for defensive linemen when it became apparent that Chambers would play part-time at most, then stepped up his search when Stillwell went down. But there was little available.

Finks admitted depth was a problem. "We don't have that many quality players," he said. But he expressed confidence in those players to "rally and win their next six games.

"We've made progress, though it may be hard for some to realize," Finks said. "But on the whole I like this squad better than the one last year. I think the future is good."

But the future is not now.

'Gentleman' Jim Lyne's puzzled by playoff snub

by DON FRISKE

Jim Lyne won't go so far as to say his St. Viator football team had a good chance of winning the state title this year.

But he sure would have liked the opportunity to give it a shot.

"Our record speaks for itself," the Lion coach said. "We were a good high school football team and we represented St. Viator in the strong tradition of its past."

ALL OF THAT, however, could not earn the Lions a spot in the state playoffs, which begin Wednesday. Even their 8-1 over-all record was not good enough. On top of that, they beat the team that was chosen over them.

The IHSA honors conference champions with an automatic berth in the playoffs. But when there is a tie for first place in any particular league, it is up to that conference to decide who will advance.

In the East Suburban Catholic bylaws, there is a procedure somewhat different than that practiced by other leagues. When teams are involved in a tie, the non-contending coaches vote on who they think should represent the conference.

Lyne is sure of only one thing about this year's vote. It went to Holy Cross, and for the first time since the state playoffs began in 1974, St. Viator will not participate.

"I REALLY DON'T know how they assessed it," Lyne said. "I want to be a gentleman about this, but I also have to be concerned about 42 young men and their parents."

St. Viator finished at 5-1 in ESC play, but so did St. Patrick and Holy Cross. The Lions lost to St. Patrick, 28-6, but were able to handle Holy Cross, 19-11.

That one conference defeat subjected the Lions to the voting of the unattached coaches. It is a system Lyne does not understand, and likes even less.

"It's not really a good way to do it," he said. "First of all, the losing teams making the selections might not be too good. But, more importantly, there is no established criteria for the selection.

"IT'S UP TO the feelings of the individual coaches, which leaves room for unhappiness for the ones who aren't picked. This year a 6-3 team was picked over an 8-1 team, and we beat them. It's for other people to draw conclusions."

Lyne does not speak those words with any anger in his voice. He holds no animosity toward Holy Cross because it had nothing to do with the decision. He will not whine and groan about what happens, and he does not want people to think he holds any lasting grudges.

But he does hope the conference comes up with a new way to break ties in the future.

"They have to make it more objective. The more objective you can make it, the less hurt feelings you have," Lyne said.

THE LION COACH has been fortunate to have good teams in the past so that he has never had to vote. His team is usually in the pack for first place.

But the two previous times when the situation came up, the selection of St. Viator was made easy for the voters because the Lions had defeated the other squads involved in the tie.

Holy Cross will play Fremd again Wednesday afternoon at 1:30. Fremd already has handled the Crusaders this season, defeating them 16-0 in the opener.

THE STATE FOOTBALL playoffs won't seem the same without St. Viator's participation this season. The conference co-champion Lions of head coach Jim Lyne registered an impressive 8-1 over-all record, but were left out in the cold by a vote of league coaches in favor of 6-3 Holy Cross whom Viator had beaten earlier, 19-11. The Lions qualified for the post-season tourney in each of the first three years.

Sports Phone—what hath Bell brought?

The first words Alexander Graham Bell spoke into his new contraption were, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you."

Unfortunately for Bell, Mr. Watson was in the next room inventing the busy signal and by the time the message got through, Bell had forgotten what he was going to say.

Eventually, Bell put together a crude instrument called a telephone and the rest is history.

Before long, the world would reap the benefits of communications breakthroughs such as the telephone solicitor and heavy breathing.

NOTHING — not even Direct Distance Dialing — can compare to the latest advancement of Mr. Bell's invention. It is something called Sports Phone and it is so revoluntary even the WATS line pales by comparison.

Sports Phone was unveiled last week at a gala press luncheon in the ornate King Arthur Room of the Sheraton-Chicago, featuring, among others, the lovely and talented Honey Bears. Had Mr. Bell been present, he would have proclaimed, "Mr. Watson, come here. You ain't gonna believe this."

The biggest celebrity on hand for the presentation was ex-Bear George Blanda, the perfect choice to kick off the new-fangled promotion. Blanda made a few jokes about pro football and tried to explain how Sports Phone would answer all the needs of Chicago's sports fans.

"The radio and TV commentators don't have time to tell you everything," Blanda said. "They tell you about Wally Chambers' knee and all the negatives. You never hear the positives from them.

Art Mugalian

Byline report

"Sports Phone will be a designated phone number that you can call to get up-to-date sports news," Blanda said. "There'll be 30 or 40 different messages during the day."

THE EXCITING THING about Sports Phone is the immediacy of it. By dialing 936-1313, you can get a one-minute sports report every bit as good as Bill Frink's five-minute news segment, without having to put up with Bill Frink.

Sports Phone's four-member editorial staff, headed by former Bulls' color man Dick Gonski, plans to include scores from the pros, colleges and preps, interviews, commentary, a "quickie quiz," and maybe even ski reports and bowling tips.

"To be perfectly frank, we intend to make money on this service," and Illinois Bell spokesman said. "Every time you call the number, there are units involved. But we're not in competition with the media, either electronic or print. This is a supplement to the media."

Sports Phone has been in existence in New York and New Jersey for a couple of years, apparently thriving with such popular devices as Dial-a-Joke and Dial-Your Horoscope.

FOR THE CONCEPT to work in the Chicago area, the phone company must promote the heck out of it. That explains why Blanda was joined by a handful of local sports stars for the big press gig last week.

Former Olympic skater Janet Lynn of Rockford, making "her first public appearance since she became a mother," dialed the first Sports Phone call on a huge, 10-foot Princess phone.

The phone rang twice and Gonski's voice, via a tape-recorded message, came on the line to tell us about the sale of the Red Sox and some other hot sports news. There also was a snippet of an interview with the Black Hawks' "Battleship" Kelly, who happened to be sitting in the audience with Gonski.

The message ended and the roomful of curious reporters, athletes and admen broke into an appreciative round of applause. You would have thought George Blanda and Dick Gonski had reinvented the telephone.

ILLINOIS BELL is going to great lengths to make Sports Phone a profitable venture. You already may have seen the beginning of a large ad campaign designed to familiarize the public with the Sports Phone number.

Last week's press luncheon was an expensive splash replete with open bar, complimentary sweatshirts with the Sports Phone logo and the notorious Honey Bears, who don't come cheap.

As a matter of fact, the Honeys did a medly of their favorite cheer, regaling as well as enlightening the rapt onlookers with the most important message of the day.

"Give us a nine . . . give us a three . . . give us a six," they yelled, almost in unison.

It was a noble attempt.

That number once again, folks, is 936-1313. . .

Colts defeat Redskins 10-3

by TOM WHITFIELD

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Freddie Scott's leaping catch of a 12-yard touchdown pass from Bert Jones early in the fourth quarter gave the Baltimore Colts a 10-3 rain-soaked victory over the Washington Redskins' Monday night in the nationally televised NFL game.

Scott's catch, made in front of Redskins' cornerback Gerard Williams with 12:47 left, kept the Colts, 7-1, atop the AFC East, one game in front of Miami. Soccer-style kicker Toni Linhart, who had a 26-yard field goal early in the first quarter, booted the conversion for Baltimore's 10th point.

Washington, 4-4, got its only points on Mark Moseley's 40-yard field goal shortly before halftime.

BALTIMORE'S defense kept scrambling Washington quarterback Joe Theismann under control, sacking him five times. Theismann, starting his second game since replacing Billy Kilmer, completed 11 of 27 passes for 168 yards. He also was intercepted twice — both times by Baltimore linebacker Stan White.

The last interception halted a desperation Redskins' drive with 1:38 left in the game. Theismann brought the Redskins from their 26 to the Baltimore 16, but time ran out.

Jones, who suffered through a 3-for-14 passing performance in the rainy first half, rebounded to finish 13 for 27 for 180 yards, but was intercepted twice after having only one pass picked off in his first seven games this year.

THE COLTS' WORKHORSE running back Lydell Mitchell carried 20 times for 111 yards, more than the entire Washington team. The Redskins rushed for only 93 yards as a team.

Baltimore took a 3-0 lead midway through the first quarter when Toni Linhart's 26-yard field goal sailed through the uprights despite being tipped by Washington's Diron Talbert.

The points were set up when Colts' linebacker Ed Simonini batted a Theismann pass into the air and White intercepted it, returning the ball 13 yards to the Washington 26.

A Jones-to-Raymone Chester pass moved the ball to the eight, but a running play lost two yards and two more Jones' passes were incomplete, bringing on Linhart.

When Washington's Eddie Moss was penalized for roughing the kicker, Baltimore continued another first-half threat to the Redskins' 20 early in the second quarter. But defensive end Ron McDole intercepted a Jones pass. It was Jones' second interception of the season and his first in 132 passes.

The Redskins tied the game 3-3 with 1:28 left in the half on Mark Moseley's 40-yard field goal, set up by Theismann's only first-half completion, a 45-yarder to Danny Buggs, that carried to the Baltimore 15. The Redskins' hopes for a touchdown ended when Theismann was sacked on third down by Mike Barnes and John Dutton.

Playoff tickets selling quickly

State football playoff fever is spreading and tickets for Wednesday's opening games are going fast, say officials at participating schools.

Tickets are on sale in the main offices at Prospect, Fremd, Elk Grove, Barrington and Elgin high schools during regular school hours. Tickets for students with identification are $1 and $2 for adults at Prospect, Fremd and Elgin. At Barrington and Elk Grove, student tickets are $1.50 and adults $2.

In Wednesday's afternoon action, Prospect is at Deerfield (1:45), Fremd at Holy Cross (1:30), Barrington at Elk Grove (2:00) and Oak Park at Elgin (2:00).

Handball champions established

Handball, which has been lurking in the shadow of racquetball in recent years, was the spotlight event last weekend at the Des Plaines YMCA.

It was the host facility for the 50th National YMCA Handball Championships as 228 players tried to go home with a victory.

Seven divisions were set up. In open singles, John Sabo of New Jersey defeated Missouri's Mike Gardner, 21-16, 21-14. The open doubles title went to Jack Roberts and Dave Dohman of Lake Forest College. They beat Tom and Jim Kopatic of Wisconsin, 21-19, 14-21, 11-8.

Dr. Gordon Lang of Chicago won the masters singles title with a 21-10, 21-16 victory over Minnesota's Wayne Stewart. Chicago's Lee Hoeft and Bud Emmanuel took the masters doubles, defeating Tom Bromfield and Phil Elbert (also of Chicago), 8-21, 21-10, 11-9.

In golden singles, which was for participants over 50, Mike Laelaff of Indiana defeated Wisconsin's Roy DeMeyer, 21-10, 11-21, 11-10. Vern Roberts Sr. and Chuck Coleman of Ohio won the masters doubles with a 15-21, 21-15, 11-10 victory over Ben Loiben and Bud Perlmean of Chicago.

In the 17-and-under junior division, Oak Park's Pat Keefe defeated Chris Roberts of Ohio, 20-21, 21-6, 11-5.

Wisconsin coach will retire soon

MADISON, Wis. — University of Wisconsin football Coach John Jardine, criticized severely by disappointed fans because of the Badgers' four-game losing streak, said Monday he is retiring at the end of the season. Jardine, in a statement, said his decision came "as a result of several events during the past weeks, especially during and after Saturday's game."

The Badgers, who at one time this season were 5-0 and ranked 15th in the nation, lost 22-0 to Purdue Saturday. Fans were heard chanting afterwards, "Good Bye, Jardine." "Many reasons entered my decision, but my main concern was for my family, my staff and the team," Jardine said.

Jardine, who said his stomach has hurt him all week, said his decision was spurred by an incident in which he "had to restrain some of my players from going out and doing battle (with fans) in their shorts."

O. J. wants to play one more year

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — It was easy to tell that O. J. Simpson had been doing a lot of heavy thinking. Simpson, sporting a full beard and flashing a confident smile, talked about his upcoming knee surgery, his playing future and his one remaining football goal at a news conference Monday at Rich Stadium.

The Buffalo Bills' premier running back hinged his future plans on the outcome of the surgery to repair a torn cartilage in his left knee. The operation will be performed in a day or two by Bills team physician Dr. Joseph Godfrey. "I'd like to play another season . . . it's kind of hard to be enthusiastic about next year right now," Simpson said. "I know I'm not going to play any more this year."

Simpson, 30, admitted he'd like to finish his pro football career with a championship contender but ruled out the possibility that he would ask the Bills to trade him.

Board says horses tranquilized

The two favorites in last Wednesday's trifecta race at the Hawthorne Race Track were tranquilized before the race in an apparent attempt to stage a fix, the chairman of the Illinois Racing Board said Monday. "It's conclusive that only two horses were involved, Sturdy Steel and Flashy Fritz. They were tranquilized by a promazine derivative," said Lucy Reum, adding that the exact type of drug used on the horses was expected to be known today.

Officials, suspecting an attempt to fix the race last Wednesday night, cancelled it after the two thoroughbreds appeared to be drowsy just before the event. Ms. Reum said a puncture mark, believed to have been caused by a hypodermic needle, was found in the neck of one horse.

Police have compiled a composite drawing of a suspect, described as well-dressed and between 25 and 30 years old. He reportedly was walking around the stable area about noon the day of the race.

Pistons trade two Porters to Nets

DETROIT — Talented-but-troubled guard Kevin Porter plus forward Howard Porter were traded by the Detroit Pistons to the New Jersey Nets along with an undisclosed amount of money Monday in exchange for guard-forward Al Skinner and two second round draft choices. The swap terminates a long-standing fued between Kevin Porter, one-time National Basketball Association assists leader, and Coach Herb Brown of the Pistons. Brown denied their differences led to the trade.

"Kevin's attitude has been tremendous this season and I wish both players the best," Brown said. "Al Skinner is a big guard who is also capable of playing a swing position. He is young and a hard working defensive player and an excellent foul shooter."

Detroit will also get a second-round choice in each of the 1978 and 1979 drafts.

Hawks getting respect without fists

by JEFF NORDLUND

Until recently, the Black Hawks would rather fight than switch.

Dropping their gloves to do battle had in a short time this season become as automatic as chasing the puck.

But that seems to be changing. The one-time bullies of the ice are fighting less and scoring more — and they haven't lost in seven games.

BUT THEY'RE still paying for those rough-house tactics of earlier games, or at least defenseman Dave Logan is. He received a one-game suspension and a $200 fine Monday as the result of a brawl with the Cleveland Barons back on Oct. 28.

Logan, who has been sitting out games recently anyway with bruised ribs, shoved an official in the face with his closed fist in an attempt to get at Greg Smith of the Barons. He was handed a game misconduct for the performance.

The trend to fewer penalties isn't drastic, nor is it intentional. But the statistics are there. The Hawks have collected an angelic 28 minutes in penalties over their last three games, two ties and a victory.

That works out to be less than 10 minutes per game, quite a contrast to the 213 minutes they were slapped with in their first nine games this season.

"THE COACH NEVER said anything about all our penalties at the start of the season," Hawks' captain Keith Magnuson said of Bob Pulford. "He knows we're not a finesse team, and sometimes the penalties are just going to come.

"But we don't have to get penalized to play our style of hockey," he said. "When we're fighting in the corners for the puck — 'mucking,' we call it — the play can get pretty rough, though.

"There are times when we're high for a game — like when we need a win to stay in first place or when we play a team from our division," he said. "That's when the fights and penalties usually come."

If anyone should know about fighting and penalties, it's Magnuson. Teamed with another scrapper, Phil Russell, on defense Magnuson has already pushed and punched his way to 29 minutes in penalties.

A SHOT AND A GOAL. A slap shot by the Hawks' Doug Wilson eludes Atlanta Flames' goalie Dan Bouchard Sunday, while Chicago's Jim Harrison and Atlanta's Miles Zaharko tussle in front of the net. The Hawks may be shedding their tough-guy image, but it hasn't hurt their goal production — as Sunday's three-goal, fight-free effort confirms.

But the temporary amnesty with the opposition on the part of the Hawks may have something to do with their growing ability to play Pulford's tight-checking, defensive style of hockey.

"MANY OF OUR penalties at the start of the season," winger Pierre Plante said, "came because we were one step behind the play. So, we had to hold our man.

"That sort of penalty will start to disappear as we learn the system better and become more disciplined players," he added.

The Hawks are still earning compliments from the opposition concerning their physical play, but their fighter reputation may be something they won't have to refresh in everyone's memory as often as they did earlier this year.

Their forechecking was excellent Sunday, especially in the first period, when the Hawks limited Atlanta to only five shots on goal. The Flames managed a slim 26 for the night. The Hawks have outshot their opoonents 140-116 this season.

Magnuson, who still has a swollen eye from a scrap earlier this season, was sitting in the penalty box when Atlanta tied the game 2-2 in the third period Sunday. It was the game's only power play score.

Magnuson's penalty was one of only two collected by Chicago, who led the NHL in penalty minutes earlier this season.

"If we're all playing well, we won't take as many penalties," Magnuson said. "But we have to play hard, and we can't depend on just one guy like Stan (Mikita) or Tony (Esposito)."

COLD FACTS — the Black Hawks' road record of 3-2-1 is the big difference over last season . . . Last year, in their first six road games the Hawks were 1-5-0 . . .

Rookie defenseman Doug Wilson presently leads the Hawks in scoring with five goals and four assists for nine points . . . Rookie center Jean Savard is second with four goals and four assists for eight points . . .

Hypnotism for sports teams?

by ED SAINSBURY
(UPI) Sports Writer

Mike Kuvakos, who uses hypnosis to control the mind, has helped some persons stop smoking and others to lose weight.

He's helped some baseball pitchers and batters, some basketball shooters.

Now he wants to contract with a major league baseball or basketball team to help it win a championship, and he offers a "money back" guarantee.

Talking to general managers of every team in both sports, when they'll talk to him, he guarantees "25 per cent more wins the first year and the second year, the championship."

"I'M UNDERESTIMATING," he said, "but that guarantee kind of turns coaches and managers off."

Kuvakos has had experience with Bulls center Artis Gilmore, when Gilmore was with the Kentucky Colonels, and White Sox pitcher Bart Johnson. He also has worked, he said, with "six or eight other White Sox whom I can't identify."

Kuvakos doesn't hypnotize his subjects in the sense the layman thinks of hypnotism. Instead he used a "machine synchronizer," which subjects concentrate on in order to "relax the eyes and produce a state of deep relaxation."

Then Kuvakos "uses words to create an atmoshpere and suggest" to the subject what his future could be.

"ALL IT DOES is influence a player to play up to his capabilities," Kuvakos said. "Imagine the ball coming over the plate and looking the size of a grapefruit to the batter. Or a pitcher who knows he's going to throw the pitch exactly where he wants it. Or using a basketball which looks like a tennis ball."

Kuvakos believes there's "too much stress placed on physical abilities. If the player doesn't have the right attitude, he can't live up to his physical ability. You have to train mentally as well as physically."

There have been "mental training" programs previously on various teams, Kuvakos said, such as transcendental meditation and positive mental attitude, but he said his hypnotic program goes further because it plants suggestions in the minds of the players.

Kuvakos, while searching for athletes to work with and a team to join, gives clinics on losing weight, and stopping smoking, and occasionally works with a subject with other problems.

KUVAKOS' FIRST experience with hypnotism came as a high school student who prepared a display for a science fair. Later he studied a hypnosis institute course.

"I expect more scientific recognition to hypnotism in sports," he said. "It's worked to help people stop smoking and lose weight, for memory improvement. It worked for an airline pilot who was afraid of flying.

"This could stimulate an athletic team emotionally to produce. This is what a hypnosis program offers. An athlete can't do it all on his own.

"You've got to keep reinforcing the mental preparation. All the athletes want to see it produce. It's like sleep learning."

Hot Barry ready to adjust scoring

by GORDON SAKAMOTO

OAKLAND (UPI) — Rick Barry has been in the National Basketball Assn. long enough to know that opposing teams aren't going to let him score at his present pace — more than 30 points a game — so he's already looking toward making some offensive adjustments.

The Golden State Warriors' forward, an all-pro several times during his 14-year career, came into the season with the burden of carrying more of an offensive load following the defection of double-figure scoring frontliner Jamaal Wilkes to Los Angeles.

Barry recently capped a sensational stretch when he had games of 44 and 51 points, but he admitted he expects opposing teams to make defensive changes soon in an effort to negate his scoring efficiency.

THAT'S WHAT HE'S gearing up for better alternative performancss.

"With Jamaal gone, I felt I had to do more things offensively," the star forward said before taking off on a road trip. "I've been doing that, but teams are going to adjust their defenses. And when that happens, it's going to open up other scoring areas for us — areas we should be able to take advantage of to make us a better balanced team.

"Right now, we're starting to get more scoring from Sonny Parker to go with Phil Smith and myself and there will be others to pick us up when we have off nights. Robert Parish has been injured much of the time and hasn't yet been the factor we know he can be and we think Rickey Green will do more things.

"Charles Dudley and Charles Johnson have been effective coming off the bench to give us some points and movement on offense and that has really helped, too."

AND WITH ALL his talk about offense, Barry doesn't mean to overlook the work of defensive specialists Clifford Ray and E. C. Coleman.

"Those guys don't score much, but their contributions have been immeasurable," Barry said. "Clifford has been playing at top efficiency and E. C. has helped us in areas that don't show up in the box scores. You've got to point to those two guys for our solid and increasingly effective defense. That's what gets us going — strong defense."

Barry pointed to a recent game against the Spurs in San Antonio. "When we fell back by eight late in the fourth quarter, it would have been easy to quit," he said.

"But we kept playing our tough defense, finally ot on the defensive board and that got our running game going. That ignited us and we got some good opportunities on offense and took advantage of them. That's what I mean."

ABOVE IT ALL, however, Barry still looks for over-all improvement by the Warriors.

"I don't think we're anywhere near our potential," he said. "We're just trying to improve slowly. We've already had several good efforts on defense with a minimum of breakdowns. But there's always room for improvement."

And coach Al Attles isn't that concerned — at least, not at this point of the season — about Barry burning himself out before the Warriors reach the midway mark of the season.

"It's early in the season and I'll have opportunities to rest him as the season goes along," Attles said. "Oh, I might be concerned a little if this was our 80th game."

"I FELL BETTER shooting the ball than I ever have in my life," Barry said. "But I don't know if I can play this way all season. I feel better physically and mentally than I did at the beginning of 1974 (the year the Warriors won the NBA title). As long as I stay healthy, I know I can continue to help the team."

But Ed Badger, coach of the Bulls, said it for NBA followers recently afer Barry put on a devastating floor performance.

"We were beaten by one of the few players in the NBA who can control the game and turn it around by himself," he said, shaking his head.

Minnesota North Stars pull 5-3 upset at Montreal

NHL report

MONTREAL (UPI) — Tim Young scored the winning goal on a breakaway at 7:55 of the final period Monday night to give the Minnesota North Stars an upset 5-3 victory over the Montreal Canadiens.

It was the first win on Forum ice for the North Stars since January 1972. The North Stars took a 3-2 lead into the final session when Young took a pass from defenseman Doug Hicks, who had gotten the puck on a rebound after a save by Minnesota goalie Pete Lopresti. Young broke in and got the puck behind Canadiens netminder Bunny Larocque to make the score 4-2.

The defending Stanley Cup champion Canadiens, with only one victory and two ties in their last six games, narrowed the score to 4-3 at 10:53 on Jacques Lemaire's power-play goal.

Spades great but NT better

Here is a hand from a match between Spain and Germany. The German bidding as shown in the box was straight forward enough provided you know that South's three-spade bid showed a solid suit.

Declarer looked over dummy, remarked that he quessed he had underbid and wished he was in seven. He let the club come around to his king, cashed two high spades, burst into happy laughter when East showed out, played out the trumps and made only six on account of the horrendous trump break.

The Spaniards started with an artificial club and somehow or other South became declarer at six no-trump after North bid all around the mulberry bush. A heart was opened. He won the trick, came to his hand with the king of clubs, led the ace of spades, noted the spade nine, then worked out the play to make six notrump.

It wasn't a tough one. He simply cashed the other three top spades while discarding one heart and three clubs and then led the 10 of diamonds for a finesse.

Ask Andy

Sign language springs from Stone Age

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Mark Kelley, 15, of Spokane, Wash., for his question:

WHEN WAS SIGN LANGUAGE INVENTED?

When we think of sign language, we usually think of that special system of hand signs and gestures that can be used by one person to communicate with another. Many deaf persons have learned to use their hands to form letters and words and thus have mastered the silent art of exchanging conversation.

A first school for the deaf was founded in Paris about 1760. Called the Abbee de Pepee, it was here that sign language using finger spelling was first taught.

Deaf people and those using hand language have as many as 1,500 signs and finger spellings available. First, there's a special signal for each letter. A V for example, is the logical extending of the pointer finger and the one next to it in a V form. The Y is made by extending the thumb and the little finger while the other three are held down in the palm.

It may seem that the process of spelling out each letter in the word is a very slow procedure, but a person using sign language develops great speed and facility.

Signaling is another type of sign language that all people, including those who can hear, come into contact with on a regular basis. The signaling type of sign language was most likely invented back in the Stone Age when man first learned to communicate with his fellow man. The first display of this type of sign language was probably when a man stood on one side of a canyon and waved to a man on the other side.

Silent electronic sign language is all around us today. As an example, there are the changing green, yellow and red lights on traffic signals, and the bright red flashing light on a police patrol car. And how about the lights on the tall radio towers? They're sending a sign language to low-flying pilots.

Another type of sign language is relayed by the use of signal flags. Called semaphore signaling, a flag is held in each hand. The sender then holds the flags in various positions that represent the letters of the alphabet. Flaghoist signals are another part of flag sign language. Here colored flags flying from a ship's mast can spell out special messages. There's a different color flag for every letter in the alphabet.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Ricky Jordan, 13, of Colorado Springs, Colo., for his question:

DO CABBAGES COME FROM SEEDS?

Although lots of home farmers buy small cabbage plants in nurseries, they very definitely do grow from seeds.

Under normal conditions, the plants are biennial--that is, farmers grow them one year and leave them in the ground during the winter. In the spring, the plants can produce seed. Plants that have been subjected to cool weather sometimes are left in the ground to produce seeds rather than harvested early as marketable heads. Many plants that are biennial will show this response to cold weather.

Cabbage seeds are small and look like those of broccoli or cauliflower. Most farmers prefer to plant the seed directly into the field, rather than to first plant them in shallow greenhouse boxes.
